News of Astronomy

Japan Underestimates
140,000,000 Years Ago

Astronomy marches on. Recent discoveries include 1700 new variable stars, used as "yardsticks" to measure the depths of space, also a new twin star, a double sun, of which there are many in the heavens, as there are many double protons and nuclei inside of some atoms. The double sun has an eclipse lasting thirty days. Professor Sharpley, at Cleveland, tells all about it.

Some of these "yardsticks" of space have a light fifteen times as great as that of our sun. Try to imagine that. Other suns are one million times as big as our sun, which is a million times as big as this earth.

The latest study shows that the milky way, which shines mildly above you at night, is not as small as Wallace and some others thought it. The distance across is at least twenty kiloparsecs. A kiloparsec is equal to 65,000 light years. To figure that distance, find the number of seconds in a year, multiply that by 186,000, multiply that by 65,000, multiply that by 20 and you'll know the width of the milky way. So far as our needs are concerned, it is much too wide.

In New York's Bronx Zoo dwell two "primates," alleged to be our cousins; namely, Janet Penserosa and Ellen Allegra, the former a gorilla, the latter a chimpanzee, both ladies. Tired of "civilized cage life," in spite of bananas handed in regularly, Janet, powerful, forced a hole in a wire screen. She and Ellen jumped out to enjoy freedom, wide spaces, the happiness of escape from civilization's trammels.

They ran a little distance and climbed a wall to glorious freedom. Then they looked around, did some "primate" thinking, hurried to the first human being they saw, their keeper, and were led back to the "house for big monkeys," exhibiting signs of joy when safely restored to the "slavery of civilization."

Human primates that "go native" on little islands, others that think they long for foolish "nudism," will know how those two primates felt before long.

Japan and England are friendly. Japan will not demand naval equality with England, only with the United States. Japan suggests a 5-4-4 ratio, five for England, four for the United States, four for Japan.

In 1776, our Japanese friends were locked up in their own islands, no American having gone to dig them out and introduce them to the West.

Had they been around this neighborhood in that year they would now compare, differently, the United States and Britain.

Also, if they knew Franklin D. Roosevelt they would know that he will build, on behalf of the United States, whatever he thinks the United States needs, asking no permission from England or Japan.

Let us hope he will decide that the United States needs airships and submarines, plus a sufficient high speed cruiser fleet to bother anybody that may bother us, and let who will build target battleships.

MOTHER WITH CHILD IN HER ARMS LEAPS 25 FEET

Trapped in their flaming home at 177 Sherman street, North Cambridge, today, three small boys were burned to death, their mother and father were scorched and injured and a two-year-old boy was rescued by his mother, in a 25-foot leap.

A baby's bottle, being heated in the early morning, led to the tragedy, according to police and firemen, who risked their lives trying to save the victims.

Leonard Smith, 10 weeks old, was one of the victims after his father had given him the bottle. The others were Eugene, 5, and Chandler, 4, who slept in a room over the kitchen.

The father, Charles Smith, 36, foreman in the enameling department of a Watertown metal company, received severe burns and lacerations. The mother, Mrs. Hilda Smith, 29, suffered the same and nervous shock.

Both were told that their three children were dead when Mr. and Mrs. Eugene C. Smith, grandparents of the children, dashed from their country home in Bolton to the hospital. The elder Smith said his son kept moaning:

"Oh, if I only could have tried once more I think I might have saved them."

The mother sobbed bitterly.

MYSTERY SEEN IN WOODS DEATH

Burton L. Tilden, 47, of Stetson road, Marshfield, a direct descendant of one of the first families in historic Marshfield, was found dead under mysterious circumstances, in the woods near the Scituate depot, today.

Tilden had been dead about five days and the finding of his body ended a three-day secret search.

Police, first informed of his disappearance by a man who said a woman had notified him, found Tilden lying face downward in the woodlands. They also discovered a bottle, the contents of which will be analyzed at the direction of Medical Examiner Riley.

The body was removed to an undertaking establishment in Scituate for an autopsy.

Police said that they were investigating a report that Tilden had been jilted. Police said they would not reveal the identity of the woman.

Bar Orders Probe of Courts

WOMAN HELD IN 3 TRUNK DEATHS

New York, Nov. 21—The skeletons of three babies were found today in a trunk covered with cobwebs in a Brooklyn warehouse. It had been stored there for two years.

Police arrested Ruby Clarke, 26-year-old blonde school teacher, of Nyack, N. Y., who formerly taught in Vermont.

CALM, THEN COLLAPSES

The prisoner, calm at first, collapsed on the police lineup platform.

Miss Clarke was later arraigned on a homicide charge before Magistrate David Hirshfield in Brooklyn Homicide Court. The hearing was postponed before pleading until Friday. She is held without bail.

A short affidavit, introduced to the court and signed by Detectives Leo Murphy and H. J. Senft, charged that "to our information and belief Miss Clarke caused the death of three infants by suffocation."

The bodies of the babies were found by employes of the warehouse.

The bodies were in such a condition police said identification would be difficult.

Records of the warehouse showed the trunk, with some pieces of furniture, were stored on July 15, 1932, by Ruby Clarke, of President street, Brooklyn. A monthly storage fee of $4 was paid.

At the President street address it was said Miss Clarke had moved but that her parents lived in Nyack, N. Y., on Rocky road.

The parents of Miss Clarke told police their daughter was on a hunting trip at Lake George. They were told to send her to the office of the Brooklyn district attorney when she returned.

She walked into the Classon avenue police station in Brooklyn and said:

"I'm Ruby Clarke. I hear you want me."

ADMITS STORING IT

She admitted she had stored the trunk, police said.

"But I know nothing about the babies," she added. "The trunk had a defective lock when I sent it to storage."

Aside from the bodies, the trunk

MR. HEARST on Internationalism and Nonsense

Acting as president of the Association of College Editors, Francis G. Smith, Jr., editor of the Daily Princetonian, addressed to William Randolph Hearst and gave out for general publication an open letter containing nine complicated questions regarding internationalism and disarmament.

The letter said that the questions had been prepared in England by Sir Norman Angell, the pacifist author and "probable winner of the Nobel Peace Prize for this year," to be answered by Lord Beaverbrook, owner of the London Daily Express.

Because of the laborious nature of the questions, Lord Beaverbrook declined to answer them.

Following is Mr Hearst's reply to Editor Smith concerning the same questions.

Nov. 17, 1934.

Mr. Francis G. Smith, Jr.,
President, the Association of College Editors,
354 Fourth avenue, New York.

My Dear Sir:

I am happy to learn that Mr. Norman Angell is a "probable Nobel Prize winner," but I have not been overwhelmingly impressed by actual prize winners—as far as their political sagacity is concerned.

Because of which, (and irrespective of which), I do not feel obligated to answer categorically disingenuous specious questions propounded on the recognized "Have you stopped beating your wife?—Answer yes or no" basis.

Nevertheless, I have no objection to stating clearly and comprehensively my beliefs as to what constitutes visionary and what practical and patriotic internationalism.

I personally believe in nationalism AND internationalism each in its proper place.

I believe in benefiting all the people of the earth, whenever and wherever we can do so

MOVE COMES ON HEELS OF COMPLAINTS

The most sweeping investigation of justice in the history of Massachusetts, covering courts from the highest to the lowest, was announced today by the Boston Bar Association in appointment of a special committee to study the judicial system.

The move was the result of complaints received by the association from lawyers and laymen.

The committee asked that the public communicate with it immediately concerning cases that might be backed by facts in instances where they feel that injustices were done.

In one instance a special justice presiding in a murder case granted a week's continuance. When the defendant was next in court on the murder complaint, the trial justice who had granted the postponement, acted as counsel.

In another instance a justice sat on an inquest and during the proceedings a policeman handed up a batch of letters which he believed had some reference to the case, which involved murder.

In the letters was mentioned the name of the son of the justice as being friendly with the wife of a "king-pin bootlegger" whose gangsters were suspected of having committed the crime. There was no further action on that case before that judge.

SUPREME COURT INCLUDED

Judges of the supreme judicial court are not immune from the searching inquiry.

One complaint was that they sowed an unwillingness to reopen a case where plain mistakes were pointed out. Among other charges along that line is a recent case wherein a judge asked why he should "open the door for others to walk through," even though the petitioner before him might have a grievance. The aggrieved person lost his petition.

Another allegation was that the court showed an unwillingness to take advantage "of obvious methods of arriving at intelligent results."

DAVIS, CHAIRMAN

Attorney Bentley W. Warren, president of the association, appointed Harold S. Davis as chairman of the special committee to work with Charles C. Cabot, Henry P. Fielding, Robert H. Hopkins and Judge Jacob J. Kaplan.

The only court that does not come in for too much spot light is the Massachusetts Land Court.

BARRED VOTERS AWARDED $900

Greenfield, Nov. 21—Verdicts totaling $900 were today awarded Ozro Baker and son, Andrew, by a jury in their suits against officials of the town of Wendell based upon illegal removal of their names from the town's voting list. The Bakers had sued for $35,000.

The suits were the outcome of rivalry between the elder Baker and Charles M. Ballou, dating back three years to a "stove pipe" town meeting, when Baker and Ballou, selectmen, gathered their retainers on either side of the stove pipe, which runs through the town hall. After the Bakers lost their right to vote, Baker lost the election.

Defendants in the suits, in addition to Ballou, were Lewis B. Bowen, Charles Pennison and Elias Richardson, of the Board of Voting Registration and Mrs. Mildred Glidden of the assessors.

WINDOW WIPER MISSES DEATH

Nine floors above the busy corner at Winter and Washington streets today a window washer was saved from death while shopping crowds stood aghast in the street.

The near victim, Louis Napoleon, 65, of South End, was caught on a window ledge on the ninth floor after his safety catch had become snarled. His shrieks and the shouts of employes in a department store across the street attracted the attention of William Hadfield of Talbot avenue, Dorchester, on the next floor.

Young Hadfield dashed down the one flight and managed to haul the window washer to safety while spectators from the department store window cheered.

WAR DEPARTMENT BOILS WITH ANGER OVER BUTLER CHARGE

LEADERS HOTLY DENY FASCIST PLOT LINK

By Universal Service

Washington, Nov. 21—Greeted at first with derision, Major-General Smedley Butler's reported charges of a Fascist plot to overthrow the American government later had War Department officials boiling with anger.

As the scope of the statement became known, consternation replaced mirth and quick efforts were made to reach General Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff. Located at his Fort Meyer, Va., quarters, MacArthur snapped into the telephone:

"I never heard of such a thing in my life. I absolutely never heard of it. I don't know what Butler is talking about."

MacArthur was named as second choice for commander of the reported Fascist uprising by those allegedly backing it.

The charges that General Butler had been offered $3,000,000 by New York financiers to organize a Fascist war-veteran army, overthrow the Roosevelt administration by a coup d'etat and establish a Fascist dictatorship in the United States on the model of Hitler Germany, are under investigation by a special congressional committee in New York.

Besides the men he mentioned in his testimony before the committee, there was a report that he had told friends in Philadelphia the dictator of the new Faclst government was to be General Hugh S. Johnson.

When General Johnson learned of this, he barked:

"He'd better be pretty damn careful. Nobody said a word to me about anything of this kind, and if they did I'd throw them out of the window. I know nothing about it."

General Butler, who was subpoenaed but appeared voluntarily before the so-called "Dickstein Committee" headed by Rep. John W. McCormack of Massachusetts, charged with investigating un-American activities, named Gerald P. MacGuire, $75-a-week bond salesman, as the emissary who had approached him with the offer.

$18,000 FOR SPEECH

The charges attributed to Butler, corroborated by a member of the congressional committee as "substantially as testified," were that he had been approached with an offer of between $18,000 and $25,000 to make a "remain-on-the-gold-standard" speech, and had refused.

It was also stated that Butler had been chosen as "the man on a white horse" to organize the Fascist army and display force in Washington, while the financial backers were placing a man in office as Secretary of State to replace President Roosevelt if he and the vice-President did not "go along" with the movement.

Then, it was said to have been planned, unemployed would be brigaded and put at forced labor, and all persons in America would be registered in the effort to prevent Communists from agitating their movement. Butler, in an interview, said it looked like "treason."

DENIED BY MacGUIRE

Through his attorney, Norman L. Marks, MacGuire said:

"We told the committee our attitude is that the whole thing is a joke and publicity stunt on the part of General Butler. There never was such a plan as he described in his interview with Paul Comly French in the New York Evening Post, and in our opinion he made it up from whole cloth out of his own mind."

Rep. McCormack, after MacGuire left, said the investigation was not being dropped, and that the charges would be "sifted to the bottom."

General Butler, Paul Comly French, a reporter who was said to have interviewed MacGuire on request of General Butler, and Captain Samuel Glazier, commander of a civilian conservation corps camp at Elkridge, Md., appeared before the congressional investigators.

Despite the ridicule, the investigation will be continued by the executive committee of the congressional committee, according to Representative McCormack.

Representative Samuel Dickstein of New York, "father" of the committee of which he is sometimes referred to as chairman, after being present at the session of tht committee to hear Butler's testimony, said:

"From present indications, General Butler has the evidence correctly. Prominent names have been mentioned. Others will be. Our agents have been checking the matter for weeks, and we believe the information supplied by General Butler to be substantially based on fact. He corroborated facts of the original interview with him, and made no denials."

GLAZIER HEARD

Captain Glazier, heard at the morning session, appeared as a witness in "connection with certain activities at the CCC camp where he is in command," it was stated by McCormack. He flatly declined to amplify this assertion.

Prominent men whose names were published in the original newspaper interview with Butler included Colonel Grayson M. P. Murphy, head of the firm for which MacGuire works, and several former American Legion national commanders. All scoffed at the charges and denied them.

As MacGuire waited before the doors of the congressional committee to be called upon to give his full denial and to submit to questioning on the accusations, the full import of General Butler's charges became generally known by virtue of the interview he gave French. The charges were:

1—That MacGuire, whose firm is established at 52 Broadway, had asked him to organize 500,000 war veterans into a Fascist army organization in which their dues would be $1 a year, and that backers of the movement had $3,000,000 with which to start the organization.

2—That MacGuire visited Butler in Philadelphia to arrange a meetin between the general and Robert Sterling Clark, New York financier, regarding a "gold standard speech" proposed to be made by Butler in Chicago. Clarke, whose fortune is estimated at $11,000,000, was found living in Paris, France. When asked concerning the sensational charges, he barred callers and refused to answer the telephone.

3—That "to be perfectly fair to MacGuire," the purported emissary did not seem "bloodthirsty," and that he contended the whole arrangement—replacing Secretary of State Hull with a Fascist-chosen man to take charge if President Roosevelt and Vice President Garner would not "go along"—was "perfectly constitutional."

4—Gen. Butler was quoted as saying MacGuire told him "we might even go along with Roosevelt and do with him what Mussolini did with the king of Italy."

5—MacGuire, according to Butler, discussed the need for a "man on a white horse" to lead the Fascist army organization, insisting a show of armed force was the only way to save the capitalistic system.

6—Butler said that MacGuire had been to Europe to study Nazi and Fascist organizations and the part war veterans played in them. Grayson M. P. Murphy, head of MacGuire's firm, confirmed MacGuire's European trip last summer on a "leave of absence without pay," but said it was for the purpose of studying foreign affairs so as better to advise his municipal bond customers.

BROKER CALLS BUTLER STORY FANTASTIC

By International News Service

Paris, Nov. 21—Robert Sterling Clark, New York broker, candidly said today that he had "strongly urged" Major-General Smedley D. Butler "to use his influence in favor of sound money and against inflation," but he flatly denied allegations that he had sponsored an American Fascist movement.

Threatening to take action against General Butler "for any libels which may have been committed," Clark expressed complete mystification concerning the general's charges that a Fascist coup was plotted.

"If anyone is anti-Fascist, I am," Clark said. "I am just as opposed to Fascism as I am to Communism."

Clark is here partially for his health, but he said he would willingly return to the United States if at any time Congress wanted to question him in connection with General Butler's story.

"I heard of General Butler's charges for the first time this morning, when I read the Paris newspapers," Clark said.

"I just can't believe it!

"Why, General Butler and I were in the army together in China, when we marched on Pekin during the Boxer rebellion.

"I was a guest in his home about a year ago. There I urged him strongly to use his influence in favor of sound money and against inflation. I was and still am opposed to dollar inflation or inflation of any form."

This apparently was the visit that General Butler referred to when he said that Clark had offered him money to go to Chicago and make a gold standard speech. Any offer of money was emphatically denied by Clark.

He came to Europe with a business agent, Albert G. Christmas, Clark said, and "I instructed Christmas to work against inflation."

"I am sending Christmas back to the United States immediately with full authority to act for redress of any libels which may have been committed."

Clark said he knew Colonel Grayson M-P. Murphy, New York stock broker named in the affair, only slightly. He declared he and Johnson once spoke to him on the street for a few minutes, but otherwise had no contacts with him.

COUNCIL FACES NEW ELY LIST

The future of horse and dog racing in this state was precipitated into a new turmoil of uncertainty by several moves today.

Most important of these was the filing, in the House of Representatives, of a bill that would abolish the racing commission provided for by act of the last Legislature and now in the turbulent process of establishment.

This bill would also abolish the existing boxing commission and create a general sports commission of five members to have state supervision of racing, boxing and wrestling. The latter sport is not now under superivision.

Delay in the meeting of the Governor's Council, which has before it Governor Ely's nominations of three racing commissioners, was another factor entering into the uncertainty.

This meeting, scheduled for noon, was postponed to a later hour.

MAY GRANT HEARING

It appeared certain that the executive councillors would take no action today on the Ely racing commission nominees, General Charles H. Cole, William H. Ensign of Westfield and Charles F. Connors of Boston.

On the other hand it was strongly indicated that the council would, late today, acceed to the request of Conrad W. Crooker, attorney representing 8000 petitioners, for a public hearing on the qualifications of the Ely nominees, over which a bitter underground battle is raging.

Such a hearing, if voted, may be held tomorrow or at some other date in the near future out of deference to Governor Ely, who is today absent from the state.

Crooker had requested permission to make an oral argument in support of his written request for a public hearing and it was understood he would call witnesses, if permitted, before the council.

PROFIT SPLIT ASKED

Another move contributing to the general uncertainty was announcement by Senator William Madden, of Roxbury, that he intended to file a bill under which 50 per cent of the profits of racing would go to the state for use of old age assistance.

Casey's bill providing for a general sports commission would have four members on annual salary of $4000 and the chairmanship worth $5000. The State Boxing commission which it would abolish is at present composed of two paid members, Daniel J. Kelly of Cambridge, and Peter Carr of Lawrence, and the Commissioner of Public Safety, Paul Kirk, who is chairman.

WITHOUT SACRIFICING THE INTERESTS OF OUR OWN PEOPLE.

I believe in promoting the public welfare, but I do not believe it necessary in doing so to be entirely indifferent to the needs of my own family and associates.

I believe in loving my neighbor as myself, but I have not yet reached the point where I am ready to sell all I have and give every precious personal and national possession to covetous neighboring nations who desire them but do not deserve them.

I believe in good faith and common honesty among individuals and also among nations.

I believe in honor even among thieves.

I believe that honest debts should be paid and a word of honor respected among peoples and politicians, even when dishonesty and dishonor are momentarily profitable.

Pledges must not be given unless they are to be observed; obligations cannot be contracted unless they are to be discharged.

Business cannot be conducted unless the names on notes and bonds are valid and honored.

International relations can never be maintained on a friendly basis or even on a business basis if all men are liars and all nations repudiators of debts and duty.

I believe in peace and in all sane measures to promote peace at home and abroad and among nations—BUT PARTICULARLY AT HOME.

I believe that the best way to insure peace at home is to keep out of wars abroad and out of unnecessary international complications which may lead to war.

I believe in sustained efforts to persuade nations to disarm.

But I do not believe that a rich and envied country like our own should place itself in the position of a shortsighted and misguided nation like China, and leave itself open to attack and exploitation by other nations which are ambitious, unscrupulous, and ARMED.

I believe in abandoning our military forces when our people can be safely and surely defended without them.

I believe in abolishing the police force when there are no longer criminal elements to necessitate it.

I believe in disbanding the fire department when all the houses are built of non-inflammable materials.

I believe in closing the idiot asylums on the day when there is no longer such an obvious and urgent need for them.

But oftentimes I am compelled to realize that such a happy day is far distant.

Sincerely yours,
WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

WOMAN LOST IN WOODS FOUND

Amesbury, Nov. 21—Missing more than 29 hours, during which she had wandered in a dazed condition through rain-drenched woods for many miles, Mrs. Ruth Rose, 26, mother of two children, was found today by members of a searching party.

She was so exhausted and otherwise suffering from her experience that after being attended by a physician at her home, she was rushed to Amesbury Hospital, where her condition was said to be serious.

Mrs. Rose was found shortly before noon by three members of a posse of 150 who combed the woods all yesterday, last night and again this morning.

PNEUMONIA FEARED

At a point about three miles from her home she staggered out of the woods along Baker street into the arms of the searchers. Her light clothing was drenched and physicians feared pneumonia might develop.

Mrs. Rose had been under treatment for a nervous disorder.

She is the wife of T. William Rose, local milk dealer. Her children are Bruce, 5, and Gertrude, 3.

Their home is in Hillside avenue here but the woman disappeared from the home of her mother-in-law, Mrs. Laura Rose, in Friend street, where she was an overnight guest.

Her only clothing when she vanished was a dress, a light coat and shoes. She wore neither hat nor stockings.

Her husband and his brothers, Arthur, Francis and Malcolm Rose, led the searching parties all night. The husband collapsed during the night, but rejoined the searchers this morning.

Police, firemen, Boy Scouts and 60 CCC members from North Andover joined the hunt under Police Chief William Gillespie.

000,000 balance remains unpaid from the $80,000,000 "Dawes loan," made in 1932.

Both courts were asked to determine the liability status of the bank's 4000 stockholders, who include General Charles G. Dawes, former Vice President and at one time chairman of the RFC.

Other creditors were prevented from filing similar suits by a temporary restraining order issued by Federal Judge John P. Barnes. The circuit court suits asked a determination of who are creditors and details of the alleged unsatisfied liabilities.

Both bills set forth that the loan was made with the Central Republic Bank and Trust Company, which consequently merged with the City National Bank and Trust Company, following Dawes' resignation from the RFC chairmanship.

The bank borrowed $30,000,000 June 29, 1932, and $50,000,000 October 6, 1932. The unpaid balance, with accrued interest, totals $60,000,000, the suits allege.

A receiver, asked in the bills, is unnecessary, W. C. Freeman, vice-president of the old institution, said, "for all its assets are pledged to the RFC and in the bank vaults. A receiver would have nothing to handle."

$138,000 for Cape Canal Work Chips

Washington, Nov. 21 (AP)—The War Department announced today an allotment of $138,000 for repairs to the hopper dredge Minquas and for construction of a pile-drive hull to replace the pile driver recently sunk in the Cape Cod Canal in Massachusetts.

UTILITIES HEAD 'SURPRISED' AT STRIKE PLAN

By Associated Press

Providence, Nov. 21—Reports that a strike is to be voted upon by employes of the Narragansett Electric Company tomorrow, meeting as members of the Brotherhood of Utility Employes of America, Local 310, were today characterized by Samuel C. Moore, president of the company, as a "distinct surprise."

In a statement today, Moore declared the company was willing to negotiate with its employes and averred that a meeting last night might not have been held, had officials of the Brotherhood kept their agreement to meet with company officials last week.

The strike question was discussed at this meeting by electrical workers of this city, Fall River, Attleboso and other places, it is understood.

The Narragansett Electric Company, said Moore, has been operating under the electrical producers code since August, 1933, and had complied with all its provisions.

Changes in wage scales and reorganization of work on a 40-hours per week basis have added $250,000 to the company's yearly payroll, he asserted, and wages now paid are up to code standards in every respect.

Whether or not a strike is called, said Mr. Moore, service of the company will be maintained.

Beginning of the strike voted last night has been deferred, pending further negotiations with the company, Brotherhood officials said after the meeting.

JAPANESE NAVY PLANS TOLD OFFICIALLY

By JAMES R. YOUNG

Copyright, 1934, by International News Service

Tokio, Nov. 21—In one of the clearest expositions of Japanese foreign policy ever made, the Japanese government, in an exclusive statement to International News Service, today outlined its reasons for denunciation of the Washington naval treaty.

An official spokesman declared emphatically Japan had no intention of attempting to outstrip Great Britain or the United States in a naval building race, but added:

"To say the United States has two long coastlines to guard and Japan only one is an unfair argument.

"Such measurements cannot be used as a yardstick to determine the size and strength of navies.

"The trade routes of America and Great Britain parallel those of Japan. We buy enormous quantities of raw products for manufacturing and of foodstuffs for consumption.

"To balance these purchases we must ship manufactured goods to foreign markets, making commerce a vital point in our existence and power. We must be assured of clear trade lanes. Our merchantmen operate regular world-wide services."

The spokesman, whose views are clearly those of the Navy Department and thus of the government itself, denied Japan was demanding numerical or quantitative parity with the United States.

Gave Away His Million to Live in Flop-House

Not Sorry

MUMSELL STIRS NEW YORK BY STRANGE TALE

By International News Service

New York, Nov. 21—So he took the million dollars, gave it away and, according to a copyrighted Evening Journal story today, went to live in a flop-house!

Furthermore, he likes it.

A. E. O. Munsell, 39, sat in his fourth floor room of a government transient shelter, the Journal said, and told why he did it. Incidentally, it's not a flop-house to him—it's "a sifter of humands." He added:

"I have been here since last August. It has been the most interesting experience in my life.

"I've found a great peace. I'm not sorry I gave the money away and I never will be."

When Munsell decided he was miscast as a financier, the Journal said, he took $500,000 and turned it over to his wife, the former Margaret Jean Dodd, a Wellesley graduate.

Then he cast about for means of disposing of the remainder. It was, he recalled kith a smile, quite easy.

Wound Up Affairs

"People started coming to my office," he said. "I investigated the worth and need of the causes they represented and gave accordingly. It didn't take long to wind up my affairs."

Now he goes around in a battered, old seersucker suit and unseasonable white sneakers.

"By the first of the year," he said, "I'll be out of here and have a job. I don't want to go into business again—not in the usual sense of the word. What I'm trying to make myself is the 'Conscience of Business'."

He is, he explained, interested in creating a better, friendlier understanding between labor and capital.

"There's nothing religious about it," he said. "I just became dissatisfied with the life. I had a craving to get out of it and do something else. So I did."

TRIPLETS

Triplets born to Mr. and Mrs. James Kelley, 138 Oakland street, Malden, in Malden Hospital on the same night when two sets of twins also arrived in the same hospital, were christened yesterday by Rev. H. L. Doyle. They are Mary Ellen, Anna Loretta and Florence Sullivan Kelley, the last named being a boy. The triplets are in the best of health and are making rapid gains in weight.

Doctors Are Baffled in Woman's Case

By Associated Press.

Kansas City, Nov. 21—An ailment which caused a woman's skin to turn purple puzzled physicians here today.

Mrs. Edith Perry, 32, became ill last Friday and her fair skin turned a light bluish color. Her physician ordered her to a hospital after he was unable to stop the change in color. The tint has gradually deepened since.

NOT FAIR!

His wife violated all traditions of fair sex marksmanship and struck him squarely in the mouth with a hurtling vase, Dr. Thomas A. W. Brigham, Arlington physician, contends in a divorce suit filed in Middlesex probate court.

And Mrs. Elizabeth Brigham comes right back with a general denial of this and other allegations and in turn charges that the doctor was cruel to her on two separate occasions and finally deserted her last August. No date has been set for hearing.

Harvard Grad

GAVE WELLESLEY WIFE $500,000 AS STARTER

Alexander E. O. "Alec" Munsell — who has New York all hot and bothered by just "taking a million dollars and giving it way" —is a Harvard graduate, a former resident of Wellesley and Milton, and the husband of a Greater Boston girl.

During all the years he was in Massachusetts, however, he managed to keep himself out of the news.

Maybe it was because, in those days, Alec wasn't giving millions of dollars away, but anyhow Harvard can remember he was there —and little more.

He was just a normal sort of student in World War times. He entered in the class of 1914, studied a while, went to war a while, came back all in one piece—and eventually received his diploma. That was in 1920.

He finally did a year or two more at graduate school, studying a little law and a little medicine.

In 1921, like many another young fellow of his age, he fell in love and got married. The girl was Margaret J. Dodd, a resident of Wellesley. She went to Wellesley College and was graduated in 1916. It was five years later that she succumbed to Alec Munsell's courtship.

They were married in Wellesley in 1921, lived in Wellesley for a time, then moved to Milton. Later they went to New Jersey and Maryland.

Alec Munsell, even then, hadn't got the giving-away-millions fever. That, it seems, was to come later.

Alec was the son of Albert H. Munsell, Brookline and Boston artist, who had only $35,000 to give to any one when he died in 1918—and who didn't give even that to his widow or his four children, including three daughters, and Alec, himself.

Alec, at that time, was at Camp Devens.

The father's will, probated in Norfolk county, bequeathed a fortune totaling 35,000 to the legator's mother and to charity.

Alec's grandfather, for whom he was named, was Alexander E. O. Munsell.

$2500 Legacy

Ex-Malden Newsboy Benefits by Will

Saul Bornstein, 72 Linwood street, Malden, who formerly sold Boston Americans in Malden square, receives a legacy of $2500 by the will of Mrs. Howard P. Haines, 241 Mountain avenue, Malden, filed for probate today.

As a newsboy Bornstein earned funds with which he purchased an auto and later an airplane, receiving his license as Malden's youngest aviator. He had acted as a spare-time chauffeur for Mrs. Haines.

The estate is valued at about $130,000. The residue is left in trust for two nephews and two nieces. Upon their deaths, scholarship funds are provided at Harvard of $5000, Phillips-Andover $3000, Bowdoin $1000, Colby College $3000.

ZITHER TUNE CHILD'S PLAY FOR JUGGLER-STRUMMER

GEORGE R. PLUNKETT
Just Zithering on the Way

Zither Player Found! Harvard Club Sighs

HE ALSO JUGGLES, RIDES BIKE SO CONCERT GOES ON

'Twas a long and drawn-out search but today Harvard could boast of a zither player.

Not only is the versatile young man the answer to prayers of the Harvard Instrumental Clubs, but he also is a juggler, a monocycle rider and an all-around freak performer —all rolled into one.

He is George R. Plunkett, 21, a junior at the university and a native of North Andover.

When his club opened a search for a zither expert, so that they might render "Ten Thousand Men of Harvard" from a zither score in the ancient archives, young Plunkett decided that he was to be the hero.

Hadn't he learned to juggle Indian clubs at the age of four? Hadn't he started riding a monocycle at the age of eight? And hadn't he juggled while riding the difficult cycle. What, then, was a mere zither?

Spurred by competition from many outsiders who heard of the zither player shortage, he set to work with a vim. Today he was announced as qualified, and the soothing strains of the mellow stringed instrument will soon waft from Harvard in its own right.

Royal Kisses for Princess Marina

Ends Journey

BRIDE-TO-BE IS WELCOMED IN LONDON

By International News Service

London, Nov. 21—While wraith-like wisps of fog drifted through open windows of London's cavernous Victoria station, Princess Marina of Greece came to England today for her marriage to the Duke of Kent on Thursday, Nov. 29.

A battery of powerful electric lights suspended over the platform cut through the gloom of the barn-like structure of metal and glass as the pretty princess, accompanied by her husband-to-be, stepped off the train from Dover to be welcomed by her future father and mother-in-law.

The lamps shed a golden radiance on the brief scene of welcome. Princess Marina and the Duke walked swiftly down a thick red carpet leading to the royal waiting room, draped with crimson velvet curtains, where King George and Queen Mary stood with their retainers.

Each greeted Princess Marina with a kiss and the royal party then entered automobiles for the short drive to Buckingham Palace.

Hundreds of foot and mounted police controlled the crowds that lined the route from the station to the palace. Scores more were on duty in the drab, smoke-filled station, where travellers rushing to Channel trains stopped for a moment to glimpse the "Cinderella" bride on her arrival in the nation of her adoption.

Representatives of the government as well as the royal family were among the reception committee at Victoria station, and members of the Greek colony in London also were on hand.

Royal Pique

King Carol Peeved by Wedding Slight

By Associated Press

Bucharest, Nov. 21—King Carol, it was learned today, resents a royal slight offered him by the king and queen of Great Britain through their failure to invite him to the wedding of Princess Marina and Prince George.

Carol was said by friends to feel that since the British rulers invited Princess Helen, his estranged wife, royal etiquette required them to ask him also.

Although Carol is Marina's uncle, he is not sending her a wedding present.

The Rumanian king, friends asserted, feels doubly piqued because the British royal family also ignored his sister, Princess Elizabeth, whose husband, the former King George of Greece, has been invited to the London nuptials.

Tech In Strato

Scientists Here Direct Balloons

By Associated Press

St. Louis, Nov. 21—A meteorological expedition from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology is sending up balloons at the Lambert-St. Louis Flying Field today in an effort to ferret out more secrets of the stratosphere.

The first balloons were released yesterday and the remainder—33 in all—are being sent aloft at two-hour intervals.

Each balloon carries a tiny instrument for recording humidity, temperature and atmospheric pressure at the various air levels through the stratosphere.

Each is inflated to ascend to an altitude of from 50,000 to 60,000 feet. At this height they are expected to burst, causing the instruments in their shock-proof bamboo frames to fall to earth.

Balloons are sent aloft in accordance to instructions based on weather observations at the school's laboratories at Cambridge, Mass., and telegraphed here.

KING GEORGE TOO SNOOTY ABOUT 'LOVE' CAROL FEELS

This is Princess Helen, estranged wife of King Carol of Roumania. She's been invited by the King and Queen of England to their son's wedding to Princess Marina of Greece.

And this is Carol, who has not been invited, supposedly because he was a bad, mean husband to Princess Helen. Carol is cross now with King George.

Here is Mm. Magda Lupescu, for love of whom King Carol left his wife and even doffed his crown--temorarily. Enough said about her!

Finally, here is the "innocent bystander," poor Princess Elizabeth of Roumania, King Carol's sister. She hasn't been invited to the British royal wedding, either. "Pretty snooty" of King George, King Carol thinks.

SCIENCE FIND REVEALED

WATER IS MIXED WITH SODIUM RHODANATE

By GOBIND BEHARI LAL
Universal Service Science Editor

Cleveland, O., Nov. 21—That chemistry by the use of sodium rhodanate can increase the length of life of middle aged persons, when medical science has failed to do so, was the claim made here by Dr. Wilder D. Bancroft, Cornell University bio-chemist, before the National Academy of Science.

Also, Professor H. C. Sherman, Columbia University chemist, held out new hope for increase of life, together with rapidity of growth in childhood, through bio-chemically improved diets.

Dr. Bancroft's militant challenge to doctors produced unusual interest.

Dr. Bancroft and his associates, Esther C. Farnham, John E. Rutzler and others, have been attempting to interest physicians in their studies of sodium rhodanate salt as a beneficial thing for health. This is one of the substances which prevents hardening of the colloids or proteins in the body, especially of nerve and brain cells

If the cells could be kept elastic, nervous irritation would be prevented, and thus persons in middle life and later would be more cheerful, vital, healthful, and presumably live longer, Dr. Bancroft argued.

Tests on Rabbits

Experiments made on rabbits and chickens, in making them drink this sodium salt with water, showed these animals lived longer and suffered less from lukemia and infectious diseases

How the Bancroft theory could be applied to human beings was thus stated by this scientist:

"If every human being of 45 or over would take sodium rhodanate regularly for the rest of his life, we predict an average increase in probable length of life of at least two years, provided medical men will co-operate with us.

"Sodium rhodanate and compounds of that type will decrease the physical effects of worry and tendency to nervous breakdowns, not caused by definite disease conditions. In the past 25 years, the probable length of human life has been materially increased, thanks to medical science.

"But the change has been largely due to a lowering in death of infants and children. The probable length of life of a person 45 years of age has not been increased in the past 25 years. Medical science has failed so far."

Dr. Bancroft criticized medical leaders for ignoring his theory and his work.

HAUPTMANN AID SOUGHT IN SEARCH FOR LINDY MONEY

$30,000 OF RANSOM CASH IS STILL MISSING

The neighbors, friends and associates of Isador Fisch, mystery man in the Lindbergh case, are the subject of a renewed investigation. This is the third article in a series by Lou Wedemar, reporter, with a unique inside knowledge of the Lindbergh kidnaping.

By LOU WEDEMAR

Copyright, 1934, Universal Service

New York, Nov. 21—Despite official statements to the contrary, $30,000 of the $50,000 Lindbergh baby ransom money is still missing. Only about $14,500 was found in the garage of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, now held for trial as the sole kidnaper.

Hauptmann says that he had found $15,000 in a cardboard box that Isidor Fisch had left with him, which burst open when rain leaked in on it. Hauptmann admits spending about $500 of the money as part payment of a debt Fisch owed him.

And only about $5000 was found in circulation during the two and a half years following the kidnaping. This includes the $500 spent by Hauptmann, and $4300 which had previously been recovered at banks and the Federal Reserve. Of the $4300, $2980 was changed in the Federal Reserve in August, 1933, by a "J. J. Faulkner," officially admitted not Hauptmann.

FEW BILLS UNCHECKED

So careful was this search that the authorities believe only a few bills—not more than $500—could have slipped through. Every bill circulated since August, 1934, when Hauptmann says he began to spend the money, has been caught. The net was so fine that agents were able to tell the serial number of the next bill which would appear, by checking the list of ransom money.

Yet, not quite $20,000 Lindbergh ransom money has been found. And $30,000 in ransom bills may remain in some hidden hoard, ready to be spent when the search ends—as it probably will end if Hauptmann is convicted.

Where is that $30,000? Was it a confederate's "split"?

Of course, New Jersey authorities, preparing to prosecute Hauptmann, hold that he spent the $30,000, that it was not caught at the banks, and that it has vanished forever—possibly to the government vaults, eventually to be destroyed.

CLASHES WITH THEORY

This is in disagreement with the authorities' statements as to the care with which the bills were sought at the Federal Reserve, through which the bills must have passed to reach the government vaults. Few probably slipped through.

Let us pass over, for the time being, New Jersey's claim that Hauptmann, a carpenter living in a $50-a-month flat, spent $30,000 in two years and the claim of Hauptmann that his brokerage and bank accounts do not show any such thing, that he had in 1931 $10,000 savings and that he made money in the stock market and in various business enterprises after the kidnaping.

Analyze the government report of all ransom money found:

$565 in $5 bills; $9100 in $10 bills; $9980 in $20 bills.

This includes the Hauptmann money and all the money found in various banks.

Dr. John F. "Jafsie" Condon paid over for Lindbergh $25,000 in $20 bills, $15,000 in $10 bills and $10,000 in $5 bills.

The $9100 in $10 bills found might be the remnant of one share of $10,000 in $10 bills; the $9980 in $20 bills the remainder of a share of $10,000 in $20 bills. No $5 bills were found in Hauptmann's garage.

HAUPTMANN VERIFIED

This might indicate that the money had been divided—that $5,000 in $10 bills, $15,000 in $20 bills, and $9,500 in $5 bills were the share of another person or persons.

At any rate, the amount of money found in Hauptmann's garage and the dates on the newspapers in which the money was wrapped, verify his story that he found the money in August and began spending it. One wrapper was a newspaper dated June, 1934, while the other was dated September 5, 1934. When reporters searched the garage they found piles of old newspapers, most of them dated June, 1934.

Thus in the evidence provided by the money there is at least a loophole through which one may look for someone besides Bruno Richard Hauptmann.

Hauptmann says Fisch, just before leaving for Germany, gave him two bags and a box to take care of.

Mrs. Kohl, Fisch's landlady, verifies this—she saw Fisch and Hauptmann removing the goods from her rooming-house in E 127th street.

Hauptmann says Fisch came to him later, at night, and gave him an additional cardboard box—pledging him to secrecy, and asking him to hide it.

So Hauptmann, he says, hid the money away pending the arrival of Pincus Fisch, Isador's brother, to settle his estate. Needing money, Hauptmann took some of Fisch's money—for Fisch owed him $7500, and he "had a right to it."

SPENT MONEY OPENLY

And Hauptmann began to spend the money, without any apparent effort at secrecy.

He spent it at a store in the Bronx, buying his wife a pair of shoes—a store in which they were well known.

He spent it at a filling station, a filling station at which he had frequently stopped for gasoline.

He left a trail of the money wherever he went, spending some within a few blocks of his home in the Bronx.

This writer does not believe Hauptmann innocent. Neither does he believe him guilty.

He believes, however, that the authorities have not devoted enough attention to the possibility of his innocence, and to two other possibilities: that Hauptmann had an accomplice, and that Isidor Fisch, or some other associates, may have been involved in the Lindbergh baby kidnaping case.

Was Isidor Fisch "J. J. Faulkner"? If not, who was? And where is the remainder of the ransom money?

Hauptmann Offers to Sell "Own Story"

By International News Service

New York, Nov. 21—Reports that police have definitely shattered Bruno Hauptmann's alibi for the night of the Lindbergh kidnaping were current today as the suspect offered his "Autobiography" for sale to defray the cost of his defense.

The prisoner's urgent need for money to finance his battle to escape the electric chair was revealed after the Federal government made an abrupt comeback into the case by placing an assessment of $9,678.30 against Hauptmann and his wife.

This assessment is based on the alleged income of the Hauptmanns in 1932 and 1933. The $50,000 ransom paid by Col. Lindbergh was passed in April of 1932.

Play Parts in Big Charity Spectacle Tomorrow Night

MRS. MICHAEL F. CARNEY — DR. JAMES H. McGRATH

The first performance of "The Pageant of the Celt" and "The Trial of Robert Emmett" will be given tomorrow night at the Boston Garden. Every penny of the proceeds from the huge spectacle will go into the Boston American Christmas Basket Fund. Your attendance may mean just one more basket for one more needy family. Mrs. Michael F. Carney, left, will play the role of "Bridget," and Dr. James H. McGrath will play the part of "St. Patrick."

BUSINESS MEN HERE LAUDED

Business leaders of Boston are acting, not talking, according to the observations today of N. J. Thomas, vice-president of the Thomas System, hair culturists, on a visit here.

Thomas was frank to say the continued use of newspaper advertising has enabled his company to bring to a high degree of success the education of people in the care of hair, premature loss of which is largely due to neglect and lack of proper advice from proper authority. In connection with his Boston office he said:

"I would rather have one ounce of the spirit I found on my visit to Boston divided between all our offices than all the pep talks designed to stimulate business in other cities. Business leaders in Boston are acting, not talking."

CELTIC PAGEANT IN LAST DRILL

The last dress rehearsal will be held tonight by the cast of "The Pageant of the Celt," for the first performance of the huge spectacle tomorrow night at the Boston Garden.

Probably the largest cast ever to appear in Boston in a dramatic or musical spectacle will be in "The Pageant of the Celt," which plays five performances in four days—Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday—the players numbering more than 1500.

Because of the interest of Boston audiences, "The Trial of Robert Emmett" will be added to the pageant, given in aid of the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund.

Raymond A. Fitzgerald will be narrator for this added episode in the pageant, for which seats are now on sale at the Boston Garden and at the Jordan March Company and the William Filene's Sons Company.

Edward J. Scanlon is director of the pageant, Benedict FitzGerald, superintendent of music in the Cambridge public schools, is in charge of the music.

Germany Observes Day of Repentance

Berlin, Nov. 21 (AP)—"Busstag," or Day of Repentance, was a legal holiday today by order by Chancellor Hitler. All stores and businesses were closed, and no papers were printed. The day was given up to devotional exercises, and visits to cemeteries in honor of the dead. Organ recitals furnished serious music, but dancing was forbidden.

HIGGINSON TO WED IN 2 DAYS

Henry Lee Higginson, grandson of the founder of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, has only to wait two more days before he is able to wed the Cambridge divorcee who is to take the place of the "Amethyst Bride" in his life.

Higginson, 34, and Mrs. Dorothy Hedden Fulton, 30, of Grozier road, Cambridge, filed marriage intentions in East Providence, R. I., last Saturday, the day after the divorce of his former wife became absolute.

The "Amethyst Bride," so-called because of the magnificent jeweled cross she received from Higginson's grandfather's estate, is Mrs. Elizabeth Eaton Higginson, the former "Betty" Bird.

She secured an uncontested divorce in Middlesex Probate Court in May, alleging cruelty. She was granted custody of a six-year-old daugter, Cecile. Higginson agreed to provide $3000 a year for her support.

ITALY BACKS UP YUGOSLAV PLEA

By Associated Press

Geneva, Nov. 21—Italy protested to the League of Nations today against reports that Premier Mussolini is attempting to block a Yugoslav request for "satisfaction" as a result of the assassination of King Alexander.

The protest said the Yugoslav memorandum was "welcomed as within Yugoslavia's rights."

Italy's action followed her similar protests in London and Paris against "the violence of the Yugoslav press," which alleged Italy had a large part in fostering Croat terrorist camps.

Italy, it is understood, is not mentioned in the Yugoslav memorandum.

3 CAMBRIDGE BABIES DIE IN FIRE, PARENTS BURNED

in her arms and saved him by taking the force of the jump herself.

Mrs. Smith might have been killed had not Andrew McGrath of 184 Sherman street partially broken her fall by attempting to catch the mother and child.

Firemen and police had to force the father of the family from the flaming dwelling. In a frenzy he dashed repeatedly into the house only to be driven back by the scorching heat.

The father finally collapsed and was taken to Cambridge City Hospital with his wife and the rescued child. The bodies of the other children were recovered several hours later.

INVESTIGATION STARTS

State Fire Inspector Everett O. Shumway joined Police Captain John J. Canney and fire department officials in an investigation. Captain Canney announced that a board on the kitchen sink had caught fire from a portable oil heater.

An hour before the fire the father had heated a bottle for Leonard on the oil heater, Captain Canney said.

The baby slept on the first floor to be near the warmth of the kitchen. The parents slept upstairs in a room that adjoined that of the rescued child and the two who met death with the baby. The father heard cries of the youngest child about 3 a. m. and went downstairs to give the baby the warmed milk.

He was just falling off in a deep sleep half an hour or so later when he heard a roar. He leaped out of bed. Then the smoke poured into the room. The red, flickering shadows played on the hall walls.

Smith cried out to his wife, raced downstairs and into a mass of flames. He screamed for help, threw open his front door and screamed again.

The family across the street heard him. Thomas Nevins rushed to a telephone and called police.

Meanwhile, the flames, fed by the draft of the open door, roared higher. They ate up the stairway now. Smith called to his wife. He battled his way up the stairs, but the fire drove him back.

REELS BACK

When firemen got there they found him clinging to the railing, weakly trying to drag himself up those stairs. He couldn't make it.

In the chamber where Mrs. Smith and her 2½-year-old child were hemmed in by flames, another such scene was enacted. The woman in desperation finally smashed through the window, poised herself with her baby. Then she leaped.

Flames reached out for her, seared her as she went through that rectangle of fire. But she shielded the child.

BABY IS SAVED

It was then that McGrath made his attempt to save the mother from serious injury. He was thrown to the ground by the impact but his act might have been the means of saving Mrs. Smith's life.

Two blocks away, in Pemberton street, Joseph Levesque, 31, was awakened by the screaming of the father. From his bedroom he could look into Sherman street and see the father pleading for help to save his babies.

Levesque hastily dressed and ran to the scene. He, too, was balked in efforts to save the children.

At the home of Mrs. Smith's parents, separated from the burning building by a vacant lot, the mother of Mrs. Smith collapsed in the midst of the excitement.

First firemen to reach the blazing building responded in a few minutes from the Taylor square firehouse at the head of Sherman street.

They carried Smith from the house as he screamed for them to save the little ones inside.

Ladderman Joseph Flynn smashed his way through the door and into the chamber where the 10-weeks-old infan lay in his crib. Fiery tongues were licking all around it. Black smoke filled the room.

WINS THROUGH—TOO LATE

Flynn grabbed the basket with the tiny form inside and started back. The woolen blankets in the basket caught fire. He reeled under the smoke and made safety, but little Leonard Smith was already dead.

Lieutenant Charles Friel and Ladderman Edward Bradshaw of he Rescue company climbed those flame-eaten stairs to the second floor.

They made their way into the bedroom of Eugene and Chandler too. They snatched the limp forms from their beds and, shielding them with their own arms, fought their way out.

FIGHT IN VAIN

But their fight also had been in vain. These little boys were with Leonard—dead.

To add to the tragedy, the time-worn police ambulance used in that section of the city stalled for 15 minutes after the parents and rescued child had been bundled in for the trip to the hospital.

Henry Lauzier of 205 Sherman street cranked steadily during that time and neighbors were about to run out their cars when the ambulance finally started.

Patrolmen John Falvey, Andrew Patten, David H. Walsh and John E. Flynn performed heroic work in the fire fighting, helping the fire department. Half a dozen doctors stood by and gave first aid to the Smiths and the rescuers alike.

The fire ate the house to a mere shell. It was extinguished at 6 a. m., three hours after death exacted its toll.

Toll of Fire Heavy

"She was a ball of fire," Andrew McGrath, above, of 184 Sherman street, North Cambridge, said of Mrs. Hilda Smith. He tried to catch her in his arms as she leaped 25 feet from her burning home with a child clutched to her breast. Her fall was broken. She will live. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

They didn't dare, at first, to tell his mother. But little Eugene Smith, 5, above, died in the fire which swept the Smith home, 177-179 Sherman street, North Cambridge, today. Two other children also lost their lives. The mother was injured and burned.

Silver Shirt Chiefs Face 'Stock' Trial

Asheville, N. C., Nov. 21 (AP)—William Dudley Pelley, formerly of Boston and Lynn, leader of the Silver Shirts of America, faced trial today in Buncombe County Superior Court, along with three of his aides, on charges of violating the State laws governing stock sales.

Pelley's organization was scrutinized several months ago by a congressional committee investigating alleged Nazi activities in the United States.

Control of Utilities Favored

President Roosevelt in a recent address hinted that the public control of utilities was a probability. The Boston Evening American's inquiring reporter sought Boston's opinion on the matter.

The question:

Do you favor public control of utilities as opposed to private control?

The answers:

Ann Rubino, a secretary of East Boston:

"Public utilities have never given the public proper consideration. On the other hand, the ambition of the utility managements has seemed to be to strip the public of its last loose nickel.

"Government supervision—even government ownership—might be some guarantee of fairer play. I am heartily in favor of it."

Ann Rubino

Chauffeur John McCarthy of Medford court, South End:

"The working man would be greatly helped by government control of public utilities. There might be a fine chance for a man with small savings to invest them—and be safe. I think the government knows what is right."

John McCarthy

Mildred Bialecka, hairdresser, of Tremont street, Boston, and Broadway, Chelsea:

"Yes, it would be one of the finest things that ever happened in this country, if the President should arrange for government control or ownership of public utilities.

"President Roosevelt and his New Deal have done well. The President knows what he is doing. He should have full control of the utilities. We wouldn't worry then about getting flimflammed."

Walter's Kiss Awakens Helen as She Falls Asleep After Evening in the Theater

SYNOPSIS

Luxurious to the nth degree of commercial splendor were the establishments of the Anastasia Beauty Salons, but dreary and unkempt were the locker quarters of the operators, who dressed and "made-up" for business in whitewashed, barn-like rooms. In one room, as they rouged their cheeks and donned their fresh, starched white uniforms, the girl talked . . . talked chiefly about the Riley sisters, who managed each of the Anastasia Salons, and about Walter Riley, their brother and the owner of the salons.

Among the operators was one who stood out from the rest—Helen Schiller. One day, before the salon opened for business, Helen was demonstrating some dance steps that she had seen on the stage the night before . . . and Walter Riley appeared. Her dancing was a blow to discipline . . . but he did not make his presence known.

Instead he backed away, to enter a little later, banging a door. When he appeared then, all the girls were at work, and he went on into the office of his sister, Stella, who managed the salon. That evening, he found himself back in the shop where Helen worked. Intending to speak to her about her dancing of the morning, he found himself disarmed by her smile.

When she asked him if he liked to dance, he appeared uncertain, admitting finally that he had never danced. Helen was surprised at this, and he suddenly asked her if she would teach him to dance. "I'd love to," she said honestly, and so they decided to go to one of the better hotels for dinner and dancing. Then, she suggested tactfully that it might be better to meet in front of the library.

He felt ill at ease. However, as the evening wore on and they danced, he found himself enjoying the dancing in spite of his awkwardness. Walter drove her home, and she left him at the door of her decent two-family brick house in Bay Ridge—but not before she agreed to accompany him to the theater the next night. During the day, she saw him only once, and then gave no sign of recognition.

At closing time, he had not reappeared, and she waited in the lobby of the building. At last, late, he appeared, breathless. He apologized, and as they drove up Fifth Avenue, his hand found hers. "Gee, you're a sweet kid," he said.

CHAPTER VI

Helen said: "So your sister Irene is getting married. I'm so glad!"

"Yes, so am I. She's the only one of the girls not married. But she's making the best match. She's awfully ambitious and clever. She's really responsible for our success. And she's beautiful, too, don't you think so?"

"Oh, yes, very!"

"She's a wonder, that girl. She always said she'd make a brilliant match and she is. She's marrying into one of the best families in New York. Real old aristocrats. Maybe you heard of them, the Terhunes. Dirk Terhune is his name."

"No. I never did; but then I don't read the society news."

"He was there tonight to meet me. A mighty fine chap. Splendid fellow. I liked him at once."

They drove up to the restaurant. Once seated, Walter ordered with dispatch. That settled, he picked up the threads of the conversation again.

"My sister Irene is different from the others. You know all my sisters, don't you?"

"HE'S NOT DYNAMIC"

"Oh, yes," Helen nodded.

"She's ambitious. She's driving. She's a terribly vital force. She's always wanted the best. Well, she's getting it. And yet"—a perplexed look came into Walter's face—"he's such a quiet, fine, thoughtful chap. He's not dynamic at all. Or he doesn't look it, at any rate. Yet he's the real thing. And Irene craves the real thing. Real family, real culture. She's getting what she's always wanted. He's in the Social Register."

Helen smiled ruefully. Their food arrived. She said: "I'm not the least bit ambitious. I don't want money or power or social position. I know I should hate it."

His brow cleared. "Then what do you want out of life, young woman, if not money and power?"

"I don't really know. I guess just simple happiness."

He laughed indulgently. "Don't you think money and power bring happiness?"

"Do they?" she asked swiftly.

His face clouded over. "No, they don't. But then, what is happiness? It's such a vague term. I don't believe anybody is really ever happy."

"I am," she declared unexpectedly. "I'm really happy now. I'm happy most of the time. I'm happy when no one I love is ill. I'm happy when Belle—she's my little sister—passes her exams at school and when my customers are satisfied. Maybe I'm simple but I don't think one needs a lot of money to be happy. I know if I had just enough money to live comfortably—not much really—and someone I loved . . . I know I'd be terribly happy."

"I AGREE WITH YOU"

He looked at her searchingly. "I agree with you. For oneself that is all one needs. Yes, that's all fine in theory, but in reality one has obligations, and family worries and family troubles." His brow darkened; that worried frown came between his eyes.

They ate in silence.

"We'll have to hurry. The show begins at half past. I'm awfully sorry to rush you."

"Oh, I'm ready. I've had enough, really. I wasn't so very hungry."

They walked in silence to the theater, since it was only a short distance from the restaurant.

Finally Helen said, "You mustn't worry for others. Let them worry themselves. It's a mistake, I think, to carry other people's troubles, even your own sisters' or brothers'."

"I know, but still I do. I always have, I guess. You see, we've had such a hard fight to get where we are. I always thought once we made money it would be all gravy, but now—" He drew a deep sigh.

"But why should you worry about what they do with their lives? You're not responsible."

"No, but I'm the only man in the family."

They entered the lobby. Walter was at once nervous, ill at ease.

"I'll meet you in our seats. I'm going to the ladies' room," she said swiftly. "Give me my ticket."

"I'll wait for you here."

"SO CLEVER OF YOU"

"Please, no, I may be a little delayed. Please wait for me inside."

"I got balcony seats," he said nervously. "I . . . I . . ." He wanted to say he couldn't get anything else but the words clove to his throat. Helen saw the pain in his eyes. She couldn't bear it.

"That's so clever of you. No one we know will see us there and we'll be so much more comfortable." She smiled up at him, took her ticket and disappeared. She didn't join him until the house darkened. Then she slipped in beside him. He found her hand and clenched it. She stole a glance at his still set profile. He sat very close to her, tense in the darkness. Neither heard a word of the first act.

When the curtain rose again he took her arm firmly. "Let's go downstairs and walk in the lobby."

She knew he hated himself for being afraid of meeting one of his sisters. He was going to face it. She followed obediently. The lobby was crowded. They stood in the corner talking while he smoked. When he realized that no one knew him he relaxed.

His brow cleared. They came down after each act. Helen, too was relieved that she saw no one she knew. If the girls found out she was out with the boss and had told them nothing about it she would be looked upon as a traitor. But then, of course, there was the ever-present danger of being seen by a customer, who would report it to one of his sisters.

Both were glad when the ordeal was over.

"I really don't care much for the theater," Helen lied tactfully, as they drove to Brooklyn. "I like dancing much better, but, best of all, I like to drive in your car."

ARMS AROUND HER

He pulled up in front of her house. He switched off the lights. Her face was a pale, luminous glow in the street light. She shivered. He pulled the rug over her knees.

"Cold?"

"A little."

He drew her to him, tucking the robe behind her slender back. His arms crept around her. She offered no resistance and so slowly he gathered her to him until she was pressed against his breast. He did not kiss her nor touch her. They clung together, the warmth of his body penetrated her coat and she was warmed.

She had no lovely lamp-shaded room to take him where they could talk and dine and slip into lovemaking and for all his wealth there was no place he could safely take her, where they weren't in danger of being seen together. Just this car. It was their heaven: their escape from cold, rain, gossip and unfriendly eyes.

Her hands lay against his shirt. "I can feel your heart," she whispered.

"You are so soft and sweet," he murmured wistfully. Gently he took off her hat so that her head rested against his throat. She was warmed now and comfortable. Her body against his relaxed. His deep breathing was soothing; her eyelids drooped. It had been a hard day and a nerve-racking evening. She slipped off into sleep as naturally as a baby.

"Helen, Helen." She awoke suddenly to feel his lips against her cheek. It was the first time he had called by name. Up to now they had both carefully avoided calling each other anything.

"Where am I? Have I been sleeping long? Oh!"

Her lips flew to his. Then she drew hastily away.

"What has happened?" she asked fearfully.

"Nothing. You were sleeping. You looked like Goldilocks in the Three Bears so I kissed you. Don't be frightened. I'm the three bears, but I don't bite."

Bodies of 3 Infants Found in Trunk; Teacher Held contained only a few clothes hangers.

When she sent the trunk to the warehouse, Miss Clarke said, it contained an accumulation of miscellany—some pictures, books and a few articles of clothing.

"I didn't think it would be safe to put anything valuable into the trunk because of the defective lock," Miss Clarke explained.

The trunk was fastened only by a strap.

Miss Clarke said a man, whose name was not revealed, accompanied her on the hunting trip, according to Assistant District Attorney McGinnis.

Miss Clarke is a widow. Her husband, whose name was "Mahod," died in 1924, after they had been married six years. She resumed her maiden name. She attended Vermont Teachers' Training College and taught in Wilmington and Cabot, Vt. She said she had recently been employed as a bookkeeper in New York banks.

Miss Clarke, charged with homicide, is a woman of medium height, well groomed and tastefully dressed.

Suspect "Retiring" as Vermont Teacher

By Associated Press

Cabot, Vt., Nov. 21—Ruby Slarke, reported arrested in New York today after bodies of three infants were found in a trunk stored in a warehouse, taught school here about 10 years ago.

C. H. Austin, then director of schools, said she taught the first four grades in the Merritt District School over a period of about two years. He said she was of "a very retiring nature" and that little was known of her affairs.

basin, there was a small pond to which giant beasts of that period, dinosaurs and other monsters, crowded, trampling each other to death, as wild animals in Africa crowd a waterhole today.

The great animals died at that hole, 140,000,000 years ago, and now Denver wires that 90,000 pounds of their bones have been shipped to the Museum of Natural History in New York by the learned Dr. Brown, curator.

Can you imagine how surprised those dinosaurs would be if they could see their bones loaded onto a freight train, to be set up, life-like, in a museum? They could not possibly conceive it.

Perhaps we primitive, small, canorous creatures of the human race would be just as much surprised if we could know our destiny 140,000,000 years from now.

Where, then, will our material bodies be travelling in space? Whither and how will the other part of us, which thinks, travel to another residence? How will it go through space, a journey hundreds of millions of light years in length?

Donald R. Richberg, able citizen, is a sort of managing editor for Franklin D. Roosevelt, who is top editor of the U. S. A. Every editor needs a managing editor, to get things done after the editor has decided what he wants. Managing Editor Richberg says we need not worry about inflation, there won't be any.

Not everybody feels so sure of that. Canadian manufacturers, fixing a new price for paper, provide in contracts with Americans for a clause protecting Canadians against any drop in the American dollar. They sell paper at so many dollars a ton, and if the dollar drops, they must get enough dollars to equal the same amount in Canadian money.

Wise ones tell President Roosevelt: "You can't expect prosperity until you balance the budget."

What is the magic in balancing the budget. What IS balancing the budget? Do individuals always balance their budgets in times of emergency?

If a capitalist is building a gigantic hotel, to cost millions, does he balance his budget that year or next, or does he borrow, build, pay back when returns come?

Must the government, trying to build prosperity at a cost of billions, spend no more than it takes in?

Isn't it enough to avoid spending what you can't pay ultimately? What is the great magic in budget balancing?

The administration is criticized because more than eighty-five millions of public money have been sent into the State of Mississippi in a year, while the United States got less than three million dollars of revenue from that state.

To take in less than three millions and give out more than eighty-five millions seems like bad business. But the national government is the father of all the states. If a human father had a child with appendicitis, he might well spend fifteen hundred dollars for an operation, without ever having a penny from that child.

Somewhere around Boston two dogs are in the wrong homes and the owners would like them back. For this reason they have appealed to the Boston Evening American for aid in finding them.

One is a small lady collie, named Paddy and owned by Miss Dorothea Brown of 1576 Cambridge street, Cambridge, lost sometime last Thursday.

If Paddy is returned to her owner—the telephone number is Porter 0049—a reward will be forthcoming.

The other missing dog is a brown, female terrier, crossed with Pomeranian, six months old and seen to have been picked up by a man last Friday afternoon at Washington and Camden streets, Roxbury.

WINTER RELIEF PLAN DRAFTED BY ROOSEVELT

By International News Service

Warm Springs, Ga., Nov. 21—President Roosevelt is drafting a winter relief program which he will definitely submit to the individual states for approval.

The plan is far from completion yet, but will call on the states to bear a material portion of the relief burden this winter.

At the same time, Mr. Roosevelt is working out the details of his proposal for enactment of federal legislation to provide for unemployment insurance on a national scale.

The executive so advised a delegation of southeastern governors who called on him at the "Little White House" here, which he fondly called his "Other Home" in the South.

GOVERNORS BACK PLAN

Conversation with the governors provided the Executive with the assurance that the states would be behind him in his program.

Mr. Roosevelt approved the idea behind the work that the governors intend to do in the carrying out of an economic plan for the Southeast. He suggested a grouping of states for co-operative solution of common problems

The meeting gave the President an opportunity for a discussion of the unemployment insurance program which he has long sought. He sounded out the visitors in a conversational way. Governor Talmadge, who acted as spokesman after the meeting, said that no opposition to the insurance proposal was apparent.

JOB INSURANCE

States must, in the last analysis, decide the question of unemployment insurance. The President's plan will call for enactment of state unemployment insurance laws. Mr. Roosevelt made it clear that he intended to draft a model law after which he hopes all states will pattern their state laws.

The Vanderbilt Case

The protracted court struggle in New York to wrest the little Vanderbilt girl from the care and custody of her mother, has come to be viewed by the public with wonderment and curiosity.

What does it mean? What is behind it?

Why has it taken seven weeks to try the comparatively simple issue as to whether the mother—the widow of Reginald Vanderbilt, well-born, of good social position, with loyal friends in high circles who gladly attest their confidence in her—shall have her little daughter, to train in filial duty and to educate and nurture through the tender years of childhood, or whether, wrenched from her natural guardian and home, the child shall be handed over to an aunt, who apparently hates its mother, and cares nothing for her human anguish.

Singular as such an issue is, and strange as the pertinacity with which the aunt, Mrs. H. P. Whitney, pursues it, the conduct of the trial by Justice Carew, of the Supreme Court, is equally singular and difficult to understand.

His exclusion of the press from the hearings was a most unfortunate step—for himself, for the confidence which the ways of justice should inspire among the people, and from the standpoint of fair play for the plaintiff-mother.

We do not at this time enter upon a discussion of the legality of this exclusion or of its propriety from the standpoint of sound public policy.

One result of the exclusion has been to stir up a mighty sympathy for the mother.

The order of exclusion was not made until testimony, of very doubtful value, gravely reflecting upon the mother, had been admitted and given wide publicity.

It was made up of accusations by discharged servants, or servants in the undisclosed employment of hostile parties.

It was cruelly unfair to the mother to shroud her answers to these damaging accusations in an unnecessary secrecy.

It may be assumed that counter testimony was given to impeach these accusations, and in fact to expose and perhaps discredit the well-financed and heavily lawyered effort to separate the child from its mother—substituting for a natural protection, a cold and artificial custodianship under the supervision of a court.

Perhaps the decision of the judge, which is now awaited, will clear up some of the mystifying aspects of this strangest of cases.

AUTO DEATHS IN U. S. 28,400

By International News Service

Hartford, Conn., Nov. 21—Approximately 28,400 persons have been killed and 740,000 injured in nearly 600,000 automobile accidents in this country during the first 10 months this year, according to statistics released today by a Hartford insurance company.

Approximate fatalities show an increase of 16 per cent over a year ago and indicates the annual record of street and highway accidents this year may exceed 36,000. This will be an all-time high mark in deaths, the report indicated, the previous record being in 1931 when more than 33,000 persons were killed.

RECOUNT SHOW CREGG WIN

In the face of complete recount returns from all election precincts in Essex County, with the exception of Swampscott, it appeared certain today that District Attorney Hugh A. Cregg had been re-elected.

The recount was demanded by Attorney John J. Foley of Lynn, Cregg's unsuccessful opponent in the election. The present count gives Cregg a lead of 427 votes. Swampscott election officials will recount the vote there today but it is virtually certain there will be no material change.

Demand for Goods Called 'Ravenous'

Atlantic City, N. J., Nov. 21 (AP)—Paul M. Hollister, executive vice-president of R. H. Macy and Co., New York, today told the 25th annual convention of the Association of National Advertisers that because all income has shrunk advertisers have fallen into the error of concluding consumer demand has dwindled.

"There never was such a passion for the possession of goods as there is today. The depression did not stifle demand—it starved it to a point where today it is ravenous."

CUTTER LAUDS HIGHWAY PLAN

A super-highway of the "limited way" type extending from Washington to Boston, of which the New England end would be the first link, is hailed by Victor M. Cutter, chairman of the New England regional planning commission as the greatest step forward in years for motoring safety.

The highway which would cost $103,000,000 and take ten years to build, should be similar to the Boston-Worcester turnpike in design, Cutter said.

Included in the proposal are arteries from northern New England and Cape Cod. The project is now under consideration by Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the interior.

CRUELTY CITED BY COUPLE

Brockton, Nov. 21—Turbulent scenes over offsprings of their first marriage were described to Judge Lloyd Chamberlain in probate court here today on a petition for separation brought by Mrs. Margaret Tyler Landry, 62, against Leo T. Landry, 68.

Mrs. Landry charged that Landry struck her with a milk bottle; threatened to hit her son, Herbert, 33, with a crowbar.

Landry countered with accusations that the woman he took for his second wife in November, 1927, blackened his daughter's eye; ripped electric wiring out of his son's room and "treated me like a dog."

The petition was taken under advisement.

DeSitter, Colleague of Einstein, Dead

Amsterdam, Nov. 21 (AP)—Dr. Willem de Sitter, 62, Professor of Astronomy of Leyden University, died today of pneumonia. Dr. De Sitter and Professor Albert Einstein in 1931-32 at Mount Wilson observatory of Carnegie Institution of Washington, made joint studies concerning the structure of the universe. Later they issued a statement that the curvature of three-dimensional space may be positive, negative, or zero.

Celebrate for Sick Twin, Too

It's the 80th birthday of Mrs. Helen B. Eaton, above, of Woodbine street, Roxbury. It's also the 80th birthday of her twin sister, Miss Josephine Byers. The latter, however, is ill, at present. So Mrs. Eaton, listening to her brand new radio, a present from her nephew, and reading her many letters and cards of congratulation, is celebrating for herself and for her sister, too. They've been taking things, turn and turn about, like that, since they were born, in 1854, in Colchester county, Nova Scotia. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

FILENE CITES BUSINESS CURE

By Associated Press

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 21—Edward A. Filene, department store executive of Boston, who sees mass production as a depression beater, remained in Pittsburgh today for another address.

In a speech tonight at the Community Forum, Filene is expected to deal further with current business problems.

Filene told 400 Pittsburgh retail merchants and department store officials last night that "there never were such opportunities for business as now."

He lauded the "wage-boosting side" of the New Deal for aiding recovery, and criticized the "price-fixing side" for retarding it.

Mass production, Filene continued, will mean greater purchasing power for the people, and this in turn will mean more employment for those who manufacture goods, and more money for them to use in purchasing their own needs.

GREAT POWERS HIT BALKANS

By Associated Press

Geneva, Nov. 21—The great powers jumped hard today on a last minute move of the Balkan States, headed by Turkey, to torpedo the projected international embargo on further arms shipment to Paraguay and Bolivia, now fighting in the Chaco Boreal of South America.

A Turkish delegate to the League of Nations condemned the projected embargo as "contrary to the spirit of the League covenant."

He announced he was supported by the Balkan entente of Yugoslavia, Greece and Rumania and also of Persia and Afghanistan.

To the surprise of the assembly, Italy, which had held views similar to those of Turkey, came out in favor of the embargo.

Capt. Anthony Eden, foreign under-secretary of Great Britain, Rene Massigli of France and Maxim Litvinoff, Russian foreign commissar also opposed Turkey's attitude.

4 DIE AS SHIPS CRASH IN FOG

By Associated Press

Alpena, Mich., Nov. 21—Four members of the crew of the steamer W. C. Franz were lost today in a collision 30 miles south by east of Thunder Bay Island, Lake Huron, between the Franz and the Edward E. Loomis.

A message from the steamer Reiss Brothers, standing by, verified by O. K. Falor, operator of a radio station at Rogers City, said the Franz sank and that 14 survivors of its crew had been taken aboard the Loomis, which was proceeding south under its own power, with considerable water in its forward hold.

Unconfirmed reports, however, said that two additional men had been lost from the crew of the Loomis.

The Franz had a crew of 18. Radio messages said the Loomis was badly damaged forward in the collision.

The sea was moderate, the messages said, but visibility still bad. The collision occurred in the early morning hours in a heavy fog.

School Trustees in Appeal for Aid

To carry on the work of the Industrial School for Crippled and Deformed Children, trustees today appealed for support of the institution in St. Botolph street, Back Bay.

In the 40th annual report for the trustees, Augustus Hemenway, chairman, pointed out that a curtailment of the work was in prospect unless funds were received soon. Until now, the report said, normal activities have been fully maintained through the practice of rigid economies and reductions.

TWO JAILED IN BEATING OF U. S. AGENT

By Associated Press

Wiscasset, Me., Nov. 21—Two Boothbay Harbor men, arrested on secret indictments returned by the Lincoln county grand jury, were in jail here today in default of $10,000 bail each pending trial.

The men were Henry Jewett, 45, and Kressel Hume, 30, charged with intent to kill Ross Nichols, Jr., 26, former federal undercover agent, who was to have been the principal witness against the pair at the present term of court.

As a result of Nichols' activities the men were charged with illegal possession and sale of liquor, which they had appealed.

The secret indictments were returned Monday night after Nichols received a severe beating allegedly at the hands of the defendants.

Police of 2 States Race Against Death

Cromwell, Ct., Nov. 21 (INS)—A 100-mile race against death over Connecticut and New York state highways today was credited with saving the life of Benjamin Gaffney, 20, of this town.

Gaffney was bitten a week ago Monday and last night the state laboratory reported to Dr. Emily Pierson the dog had died of rabies.

Dr. Pierson sought aid of the state police to obtain serum from New York city and meanwhile asked others to locate Gaffney.

The serum was rushed by state police in relays. Gaffney, found at a motion picture, was unaware the dog that bit him eight days ago had been rabid.

POLITICAL FIGHT HALTS ERA JOB

Bellingham, Nov. 21—Two score ERA workers, eager to work equally well for a Republican or Democratic boss, stood idle here today while a bitter political row raged over the position of local ERA administrator.

With all picks, shovels and axes under lock and key in the town hall, work came to a halt as the board of selectmen refused to recognize the appointment of Edwin F. Tuttle to succeed Herbert W. Ambler to the ERA post.

And the $2500 monthly payroll on which 42 men and five women depended for their bread and butter was cut off short, too.

Efforts of mediators to end the impasse met with stubborn resistance from two of the three selectmen. Controlling the board, Selectmen Edmond Goggin and Alfred Pouliot ordered Police Chief John H. Foley to prevent Tuttle from entering the ERA office in the town hall.

They announced that unless Ambler, ERA administrator here until removed this week "for the good of the service" by State Administrator Arthur G. Rotch, was reinstated they would not allow any work to be done on town lands by ERA forces.

Since ERA work may be performed only on public property this action effectively shut off ERA operations in the town.

Tuttle, who was appointed by Administrator Rotch to succeed Ambler, is chairman of the Democratic town committee. Back of the present row is a bitter political feud which began when Ambler was elected to the board of public welfare and was named ERA administrator by former State Administrator Joseph P. Carney.

Rotch, explaining that he removed Ambler following "a great many complaints," said:

"Unless the selectmen agree to my appointment there will be no more money sent to Bellingham for ERA. They are shouldering the responsibility of the unemployed people."

WALSH VISIONS SPENDING CURB

The end of vast government expenditures, of which the cessation of loans by the Home Owners' Loan Corporation is an indication, is now in sight, according to Senator David I. Walsh.

Speaking before the New England Bakers' Association at the Hotel Statler, he said:

"Private business is on its stomach and the unemployed workers are standing on its back. We must get the workers back to work and private business back on its feet. That is our first concern and main objective."

Senator Walsh added that business must be put on a profitable basis if the depression is not to go on indefinitely.

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS TO SHUN PREMIERE OF MOVIE HE MADE IN ENGLAND

Sterling Holloway Is Assigned Role in 'The Torch Bearers' Picture by Fox

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service
Copyright, 1934, by Universal Service

Los Angeles, Nov. 21—Douglas Fairbanks will be conspicuous by his absence when his picture, "The Private Life of Don Juan," directed by Alexander Korda, has its premiere in Hollywood. Not only has Doug sold his interests in the London Films, Ltd., but he doesn't own five cents' worth of stock in the picture which starred him. In other words he is not amused by this film.

Louella O. Parsons

Representing London Films Ltd. is Karl Kitchen, former columnist and friend of Mr. Fairbanks. He is here to arrange the premiere of "Don Juan" and to promote "The Congo Raids," starring Paul Robeson and "A Hundred Years From Now," John Barrymore's picture, also London Films Ltd.'s cinema offering.

I have often wondered why Sterling Holloway wasn't given better opportunities. To me he is one of the funniest men on the screen and every time he has played even a bit, the audience has shouted with laughter. He is a natural born comic. Fox is going to produce Gregory Kelly's old play, "The Torch Bearers" and I am glad to say Sterling Holloway has the lead. This is his first for Fox on a long term contract and Winfield Sheehan or whoever signed him is to be congratulated. Handled right this boy should become a ranking comic within the year.

Evelyn Venable

Shirley Temple, now rated a star by her admiring boss, Winfield Sheehan, has a new leading man. Lionel Barrymore, no less, will be co-starred with Shirley in "The Little Colonel," and that, everyone on the Fox lot believes is a combination to get the folks into the theater. Meanwhile, Paramount contracts await the pleasure of Evelyn Venable while Evelyn tosses her head and gets herself a job in the Temple picture at Fox.

Seems Philo Vance and William Powell have parted company for good. I suppose since Bill is playing more varied roles and he's now one of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's most important stars, that's as it should be but some way I can never see any other actor in the S. S. Van Dine murder mysteries which I know Bill is glad are out of his life. Otto Kruger has been selected by Harry Rapf to play Vance in "The Casino Murder Case" and I just cannot see Kruger as the suave detective. But I may be wrong, I often am.

Chatter in Hollywood

The Grace Poggi-Joseph Schenck romance, interrupted during Joe's engagement interlude with Merle Oberon, is being resumed with Poggi reported on the incoming boat from Europe, due to dock today. On the same boat with Joe and Miss Poggi and her chaperone are Leslie Howard and Merle Oberon, all four on the friendliest possible terms. At least such is a well authenticated report that reaches this desk.

Snapshots of Hollywood

DOLORES DEL RIO'S enthusiastic guests, mopping the tennis court after the big rainfall, to play tennis with FRANK SHIELDS, tennis champion; ALICE DUER MILLER, delightfully entertaining woman, who came West just for a holiday, motoring north with CHARLES LEDERER to be guests at a week-end party; MARION DAVIES in a most becoming blue dinner gown and NORMA SHEARER in green and gold, much admired; NORMA airplanned north with IRVING THALBERG and LADY EDWINA MOUNTBATTEN in a driving rainstorm, getting a tremendous thrill out of sky riding in the rain; GLADYS UNGER hostess at a huge party in honor of CONSTANCE COLLIER; the SAMUEL HOFFENSTEINS throwing away the key to their front door and putting on a cocktail party that lasted from afternoon to breakfast time the next day; MARIAN MARSH divided her smiles the past week between her steady, JOEY RAY, and HOWARD HUGHES; the benefit for MARY BLACKFORD at the Ambassador, a sell out; the girls who originated the idea, SUE CAROL, PATRICIA ELLIS, ANITA LOUISE, deserve a big hand. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

The Campus Cut-up and His Inspiration

Lyda Roberti is the girl who breaks hearts and Joe ("Wanna-Buy-a-Duck") Penner, her hero in College Rhythm which comes to the screen at the Metropolitan on Friday.

Marionettes to Return

Tony Sarg and his world-renowned Marionettes, are scheduled for their Boston season at Tremont Temple during the entire Thanksgiving week, beginning Monday, November 26.

"Faust, the Wicked Magician," one of the most hilarious of the puppet adventures, comprises the new program. Performances will be mornings and afternoons only, with the early program at 10:30 a. m., and the afternoon matinee at 2:30. New low prices will be in effect for the entire engagement.

Schubert Fifth at Symphony

Continuing the orderly perusal of the orchestral works of Schubert, Schumann and Brahms which will occupy all six of the Tuesday concerts, Dr. Koussevitzky yesterday afternoon lead his forces—and consequently they played—with a vigor and zest which belied the strenuous ardors of last week's trip to New York and points south.

The Schubert fifth Symphony is a work of such pointed freshness and luminous orchestration that, during the faultless performance, one kept wondering why so many people had lost their heads in rapt admiration of the far more familiar "Unfinished" Symphony.

They played two movements from the very long 2d Symphony of Schumann. The last movement—scherzo; allegro vivace; the trio of outstanding beauty and originality. It was possibly the highest spot of the afternoon; and Dr. Koussevitzky and his men played it to the top of its bent.

'White Parade' Heads New Films

"The White Parade," with Loretta Young and John Boles in the leading roles, heads the array of new pictures opening today on Boston screens. The story is built around the lives and romances of the student nurse, and in the cast with the two stars are Dorothy Wilson, Muriel Kirland, Astrid Allwyn, Frank Molton, Walter Johnson and Joyce Compton.

On the same program is "Ready For Love," with Richard Arlen, Ida Lupino and Marjorie Rambeau as the principals. Beulah Bondi, Esther Howard, Henry Travers, Charles Sellon, Fred Santley and David Loring are among the players.

Heifetz Will Be Soloist

The eminent violinist, Jascha Heifetz, will appear as soloist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra at the Friday afternoon and Saturday evening concerts, playing for the first time the Sibelius Violin Concerto.

By Betty Alden

THE MARCH OF THE DEBUTANTES is still going on apace . . . today Mrs. Frank C. Paine gave a tea at her home on Mount Vernon street, Beacon Hill, for her debutante daughter, Miss Jeannie Paine, and Miss Anne Fisher, daughter of Mrs. Richard T. Fisher of Weston . . .

Miss Paine received her friends wearing a turquoise blue velvet gown . . . Miss Fisher's presentation dress was Chinese blue velvet . . . they both carried a bouquet of African daisies. Mrs. Paine received with the young ladies in a black velvet gown trimmed with rare lace.

JEANNIE PAINE

Miss Hope Hubbard attended the tea and served as head pourer . . . assisted by Hope Blanchard, Elizabeth Brooks, Daphne Brooks, Eleanor Claflin, Hamelle Cochrane, Geraldine Field, Doris Foot, Jane Hamlin, Margaret Hardwick, Frances Hovey, Alice Hutchins, Lydia Lyman, Cora Peabody, Martha Proctor . . .

Also Elise Russell, Ruth Talbot, Jean Tuckerman, Frances Weeks, Tasha Tudor, Faith Fisher, Sally Paine, Charlotte Paine, Elizabeth Sage, Cynthia Northey, Barbara Kidder, Celina Robbins, Patricia Farley and Jean Melville.

The two debutantes attended Miss Winsor's School and Concord Academy and are provisional members of the Junior League.

Harmonica Band at Frolic

THE BURROUGHS NEWSBOYS' HARMONICA BAND will give a short program and have an appropriate arrangement entitled "Sea Chant" at the Farmers' and Fishermen's Frolic this evening at the Hotel Somerset. This will prove an added attraction to ths already eagerly anticipated party.

Miss Harriet Blake, sister of Leslie Blake, debutante torch singer at the Club Touraine, and Miss Dorothy Thuringer, dancer, will give a short program of dances during the intermission.

Mrs. Francis W. Bird of East Walople, Mrs. H. Frederick Lesh, and Mrs. William L. Shearer, 3d and Mrs. C. Terry Collens are giving dinner parties preceding the frolic. Mrs. Renouf Russell is giving a large dinner party for her debutante daughter, Miss Elise Russell, beforehand.

Fashion Show Is Well Attended

THE FIRST FASHION SHOW at the Ritz-Carlton this season brought out the best, the next best and the almost as good yesterday in the social whirl . . . if you can get such fine distinctions. The magic name of Lydia Codman was partly responsible . . . she enjoys a fine social position within and without her dressmaking establishment.

It was a Boston style show modelled by Boston ladies in the best Boston manner . . . there wasn't a thing Park avenue about it. Mrs. Codman knows what her patrons choose to wear and gives it to them. She has always been known as one of the most outstandingly well-dressed since she was a young bride . . . it is apparently not contagious. Mrs. Franklin's sports clothes were built for comfort, too . . . nothing startling, nothing daring . . . no Schlapparelli SHE. Conservative was the word to describe the entire collection.

The crowds who filled the blue and gray dining-room and overflowed into the Peacock room and lounge were, on the whole, well turned out. So many were they that the motors caused a traffic jam on Arlington and Newbury streets which sent a hurry call for the police to straighten it out . . . The lunch started tranquilly with a Daiquari, the one place in town where they know how to mix one . . . chatting at a nearby table we glimpsed the mothers of some of the girls who were mannikins. Mrs. S. Huntington Wolcott wore her black and white checker-board coat as she watched her daughter, Miss Edith Wolcott, whose marriage to Charles Devens takes place soon, walk blithely up and down between the tables in swagger tweeds . . .

She was in a group which included Mrs. Philip Stockton in black astrakhan coat and Russian toque . . . Mrs. William C. Ladd in smart black tweed with checked revers and matching hat . . .

Mrs. Norman Vaughan in Stylish Black

NEARBY WE SAW MRS. JOHN A. TUCKERMAN, Mrs. Chatfield Whitman, Mrs. Harrison Reynolds, Mrs. Nathaniel Emmons, decidedly chic in gray wool with large wavy black beret . . . Miss Alice Merriam also chose the light gray trimmed with krimmer to offset her dark hair . . .

Mrs. David Newell

Russian headress was very popular . . . Mrs. James St. Clair wore a smart one in black velvet and black suit as she lunched with Mrs. Norman Vaughan, also in the stylish black. Mrs. Gardiner Fiske was very royal in bright blue with matching velvet turban.

Milda Allen in brown with raccoon and Frances McElwain in black and white wide striped wool came in together . . . Mrs. Paul Rust, Jr., was different in chipmunk cape and wide tan beret as she lunched with her two small children. Two of our most beautifully dressed Young and Lovelies were viewing the modes with interest, Miss Kathleen and Miss Clare Moran . . . the former in cherry red tweed three-piece suit with luxurious black fox collar and the latter in black tailleur with lame blouse and black wavy beret. They were entertaining a house guest, Miss Candase Alig, whose brown and chartreuse ensemble was very becoming. Mrs. Robert Perkins was lovely as always in a smart black suit and turban and the cheery Mrs. David Newell was in the green of the season. In mink, Mrs. Bayard Tuckerman came with a group from the North Shore. It was a really society turnout and proves that Dame Fashion is still the best drawing-card on the bill-of-fashion's fare.

ROBERT B. ALMY, prominent Boston sportsman, who is in charge of invitation hunter classes for the coming 110th Cavalry horse show to be held at the Commonwealth Armory on December 6, 7 and 8, has sent invitations to the masters of the eight recognized hunt clubs of Massachusetts to bring their teams.

Mrs. I. Tucker Burr, Jr., master of Norfolk, Mrs. Thomas M. James and F. Harold Tolman of Cohasset, George H. D. Lamson of Millwood, Mrs. Robert B. Almy and Josiah Child of Dedham, George E. Mr. Almy is in charge of two features of the show, a Corinthian class sweepstakes and a hunt team class, in which the winners will receive handsome trophies. A favorable response from most of the hunts indicates that these events will be extremely colorful and of great interest to the society patrons of the show. The formal hunt livery of each club will be worn by the riders in these classes.

ROAST IS GOOD INVESTMENT WHEN BUDGETTED INTO SEVERAL MEALS

Given in Marriage

By ADELE GARRISON

Mary's histrionic ability comes in handy as she and Noel successfully make their escape from the farmhouse on the start of their honeymoon.

WOULD THE ruse Mary had planned so cleverly be effective in stopping the investigation of Bill and Hank into the identity of the two people who just had left our kitchen door?

This was the question which beat with crazy insistence against my brain as I saw Bill and Hank dashing toward the kitchen door from Noel's old car, where they had been stationed waiting to give the signal to the merry quartet who were determined to trail the bride and groom.

I shrank back behind the door and gave a tense, hoarse, whispered command to the Ticers

"Quick, both of you, into the laundry and shut the door! Don't come out until I call you."

Mrs. Ticer, quicker-witted than her husband, grabbed his arm and dragged him through the door into the laundry. I shrank behind the kitchen door as Mary turned, in answer to Katie's call, and in an imitation of Mrs Ticer's voice so lifelike that I jumped, she called back: "Well! what's on your mind now?"

"Don't forget to bring me some eggs in time for breakfast," Katie shrilled. "Me, I almost been eat out of mine keetchen mit dees crowd."

FOOLING THE PLOTTERS

"I'll remember," Mary said, and turned, plodded on again, while Bill and Hank halted in their tracks

"Aw! It's only the Ticers," Hank said disgustingly

"We might as well get back to the car and hide in the rear seat again," Bill answered. "I guess that's our best bet, at that. It would be a fine thing if they came out another door and got away while we were chasing the Ticers."

"Gee!" Bill answered and upon the word the two boys dashed back to Noel's car and clambered into it, while I, secure from observation once more, went back to Katie's side and strained my eyes to watch the progress of Noel and Mary, in their grotesque disguise, toward the barn

Katie was in the seventh heaven of delight at being able to be the goddess of the machine in the escape of the honeymooners. She was elaborating on her instructions, I was sure, when she followed up her request for eggs with an excited

KATIE'S "MOVIE STUFF"

"Good night! Sleep tight!"

"Good night," Mary called back, but Noel remained silent. I guessed that he did not trust his voice to give an imitation of Mr. Ticer's voice, which should come anywhere near equalling Mary's performance.

"Don't call again" I told Katie in a low voice 'You've had wonderful success so far, but we ought not to delay them any longer."

I expected a bit of sulkiness upon the part of my little maid, for she dearly loves what she calls "dot movie stuff," but she proved unusually tractable

"Dot's oke by me," she said largely, and I controlled my ripples with difficulty.

TROUBLE LOOMS

"I think your eyes are better than mine, Katie," I told her quickly. "Will you tell me when they get into the car?"

"Vot foolishness you talk!" Katie volunteered. "Nobody in dese house got better lamps dan you. But me, I vatch, too. But nobody need eyes wen Jerry Ticer starts dot flivver. You kin hear heem go, out as far as Montauk Point."

"I wonder if it will bring the young people out here," I said worriedly

"Sure ting!" Katie said with magnificent carelessness. "But vot goot will eet do dem ven dey coom? Ve shoost be like—vell, nefer mind. Und Meester Bill and Meester Hank, out dere in Meester Noel's old car, dey kin swear to eet."

"Yes, that's true, Katie," I assented. And then there came a blast from the horn of Jerry Ticer's car which should have awakened any sleepers within a radius of five miles.

Different Ways and Means of Serving

By Martha Lee

From Martha Lee's Wednesday morning broadcast over station WAAB.

WE HAVE been hearing at great length for many years that left-overs should be served as attractively as possible and disguised so that the family will not know that they are eating them. But there is another consideration that is very important in these days of penny saving. While the first cost of a roast of meat may seem to use up more than its share of the food budget, by the clever use of the left-overs the roast can be made to serve two or more meals.

If you have a large roast, slices may be cut off to be used as steaks or chops for the first day and a roast cooked the following day. But if you have some cooked meat reposing in the refrigerator try some of these recipes

SLICED BEEF IN MUSTARD SAUCE

- 2 bouillon cubes dissolved in
- 2 cups boiling water
- 2 medium-sized onions
- 3 tablespoons butter
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 1 tablespoon parsley, minced
- 2 teaspoons prepared mustard
- Salt and pepper
- 12 thinly cut slices roast beef

Chop the onions fine and cook in melted butter until yellow. Add the flour and the parsley, then the bouillon. Stir constantly until thickened, and season with salt and pepper and prepared mustard. Drop in the beef and cook just long enough to heat through the meat, about 10 minutes. Serves six.

VEAL RAMEKINS

- 3 cups bouillon, canned or from cubes
- 1 cup rice
- ½ pound diced cooked veal
- ¼ pound cooked tongue (or ham)
- 1 tablespoon chopped parsley
- 8 mushrooms, cooked and chopped
- 4 tablespoons white sauce
- 2 eggs
- Salt and pepper to taste

Cook the rice in the bouillon until tender, then drain. Mix together the veal, the tongue cut in strips, the parsley, white sauce and mushrooms. Add the egg yolks and whites well beaten. Line small buttered ramekins with the rice, fill up with the meat mixture and steam for twenty minutes. Serve hot with tomato sauce. Serves six.

MEAT PIE

- 1½ cups bouillon
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 4 tablespoons flour
- ½ cup strained tomato juice
- 2 cups left over beef, veal or lamb, cut in pieces

Melt the butter, add the flour, then the bouillon and the tomato juice, and stir until smooth. Add the meat with one onion, one sliced carrot, small piece of bay leaf, one tablespoon chopped parsley. Simmer gently twenty minutes. Season well, put in baking dish and cover with biscuit crust. Bake twenty minutes in hot oven (425 deg. F.). Serves six.

Should a Child Rule Mother's Remarriage?

By Sheilah Graham

Ladies and gentlemen. I want you to meet a very intelligent female. You have probably heard her warbling on the vaudeville stage and radio, and admired her vocal chords. Now I want you to admire her mind. You will. Just wait.

Belle Baker, Broadway Vaudeville Queen, do a nice curtsey for the boys and girls out front.

Belle is a widow and a mother, and incidentally at present a headliner on the London stage.

A few days ago, love, with a capital L, played a tom tom on her emotions. The new "heart" is British—rich, pleasant and handsome.

"Well, what are they waiting for?" sez you. "Why don't they put themselves out of their misery and get a jolly old marriage license?"

Ah, ha, as they used to say in the melodramas. This is why not, and you tell me if you don't think it is a good reason for Belle's sudden coyness on the matrimonial brink.

7-YEAR-OLD BOY

Belle has a seven-year-old son called Herbert. Like all seven-year-old sons—or daughters, for that matter—Herbert is a person of very definite likes and dislikes.

Belle is in love with her Britisher. She has put it on record that she wants to marry him. But what about her son? She is not at all sure that (a) he will welcome a new pappy, or (b) he will be satisfied with the one she has picked for him

And so the beautiful Belle has filed her proposal until Christmas, when she and the man of her second choice will return to New York—and the scrutiny of her youngster.

I want to congratulate you, Belle. You have proved yourself a real mother. You have proved that your own happiness has not obscured the happiness and well being of your son. Furthermore, you are acting wisely to wait for the judgment of your child.

Parents who marry again without the consent of their children deserve all the discord they inevitably get.

FOR HAPPINESS

It is all very well to argue that parents who are in the market for matrimony have as much right for happiness as the children they bore.

They have, but not at the expense of their children's happiness. The latter should come first—particularly when the children are very young

Keep Busy to Keep Young

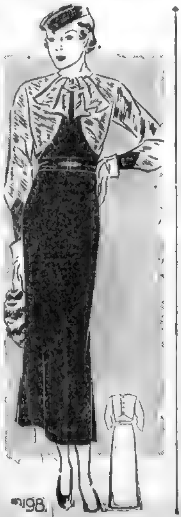
Not to exercise is to starve one's muscles. It is also to invite the mealbag shape and deposits of adipose tissue. Activity is one of the laws of life. Keep busy and you keep young. The daily walk won't shake off poundage, but it will rouse circulation, and upon circulation good looks depend. In addition to the daily hoofing add fifteen minutes of calesthenics and the cosmetic budget will always be ample, no matter how small it may be.

Without exercise, the body loses resiliency and the power of graceful movement. Soon, the lazy one joins up with slow moving traffic which takes her rapidly away from the days of her youth

Golden Birds Swoop Across Anna Sten Hat

IT CAPTURES the subtle, encompassing lure of Anna Sten herself—this softly crushed brown felt hat, its three golden birds winging swiftly across the front, with a graceful streaming curve of feather falling over the left side. It is vastly feminine, with the enchanting slight ripple, its curved brim melting cloche-like into the crown, and a provocative tilt. You need no second glance to tell that this little hat can evoke glamour wherever it goes . . . Its exact duplicate is right here in a Boston shop! Though not inexpensive (it's somewhat over the ten-dollar limit) it is the sort that belongs on a girl's "must have" list. If you would like to know where the Sten hat is to be seen in Boston, phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, Liberty 4000, or write her at the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

After-the-Game Dance Frock



By MARIAN MARTIN

PATTERN 9198

For an after-the-game dance, or an after-the-working day dinner engagement, this lovely afternoon dress would be perfect. It's a shining hour frock, designed with an eye to the vogue for elegance in this winter's mode. A spirited double-jabot tops the bolero lines of its youthful bodice — smart slashes at each side give a final touch of chic to its pencil-slim skirt. For a costume of unusual glamor, try chiffon-velvet with shimmering metal cloth for the bodice bolero. Satin with velvet would be a lovely choice too. Make the sleeves with nicely pointed cuffs or in a smart three-quarter length like the small back sketch.

Pattern 9198 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 2⅞ yards 39 inch fabric, and 1¼ yards contrasting.

Gray Dawns for Evening

(Authentic Last Minute Fashions from New York—the Style Center of America.)

By DOROTHY ROE

GRAY is dawning as one of the important colors for evening fashions.

Misty gray chiffon, embroidered in rhinestones, has a look of cobwebs and dew when embodied in an ethereal evening gown for an ethereal blonde.

Gray hammered satin looks like molten metal in a streamline, form-fitting gown with a belt of stratosphere blue glass.

MANGO CONTRAST

And each of these may have startling color contrasts, such as a touch of bright red or bright green velvet, or a belt in mango orange or cerise.

Slipper satin is emerging as one of the principal contenders for popularity prize for evening gowns. Its lustrous surface, its stiff body and its adaptability to the modern streamline styles makes it an effective medium.

The shinier satins are having their innings, too, both in solid colors and in prints.

BACK FULLNESS

The new evening gowns are leaning toward back fullness again, especially in crisp taffetas and such fabrics, which can swish into a room with an important rustle. The fullness is sometimes in the form of a large bow, and sometimes in the form of shirrings or pleats.

Covered shoulders are still good in formal fashions, but in this case the back must have a slit, revealing at least a glimpse of white or sun-tanned skin—just to please the innocent bystanders, you understand.

Mending Curtains

LACE CURTAINS can be mended by placing a small piece of netting, which has been starched, over the hole on the wrong side of the curtain and then pressing firmly with a hot iron. This is neater and quicker than darning.

Afternoon Dress Is Correct Attire For Second Marriage

By Mrs. Beeckman

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am going to be bridesmaid to a widow, aged 35. The groom has never been married before. The wedding is to take place at the church in the afternoon, with a reception in the evening.

Having been married before, what should she wear? What should I wear? Is it proper to carry flowers or wear them? How should the announcements be worded? M.

For the ceremony in the afternoon, the bride would wear an afternoon dress, or, better, an ensemble, of a shade that is becoming to her, and of a material appropriate to the season. And she, of course, wears a hat, harmonizing with this costume, but needn't wear gloves.

You, as her bridesmaid, should wear a costume of the same type —an afternoon type—but of a different color. For the reception in the evening, you and she would wear dresses that are appropriate to the degree of formality of this occasion. Semi-formal evening dresses would probably be appropriate

Usually, at this kind of informal wedding, the bride and her attendant wear corsages

The announcements may be sent out by the bride's mother and father, as were the announcements for her first marriage. Or, since the bride and groom are of "more mature years," they may send out the announcements in their own names. Like this

Mr. Walter Byrd Gregory and
Mrs. Elizabeth Brown Allen announce their marriage on Tuesday, the first of October nineteen hundred and thirty-four Catonsville, Maryland

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

During my vacation this summer I met a young man from another city. I accepted his and his mother's invitation to spend a few days with them in their city. Now that I have returned, I wish to write his mother thanking her for the pleasant time I had. How should this letter be worded? B.

First thank your hostess for her kind invitation, her thoughtfulness her gracious hospitality and for the happy time you had when you were visiting her home. Then thank her for plans that she made for your entertainment, a dinner, a luncheon, a tea, or something of this special kind.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on Good Manners submitted by readers.)

Grand Coup Versus Safety

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

The grand coup is one of the most spectacular of all plays. I have given many examples of the successful operation of this coup in these columns, and the technique is essentially the same in all of them. I think today's is particularly interesting, not because of the coup itself, but because of the fact that the declarer would not have needed this complicated play had he merely made a simple safety play in the first place

South, Dealer
Neither side vulnerable.

North: ♠ 5 4 ♥ Q 6 5 3 ♦ A K 7 4 2 ♣ A Q
West: ♠ — ♥ 10 9 8 2 ♦ 9 8 3 ♣ K 10 9 6 5 3
East: ♠ Q J 9 7 ♥ 7 4 ♦ Q 10 6 5 ♣ J 8 7
South: ♠ A K 10 8 6 3 2 ♥ A K J ♦ J ♣ 4 2

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♦	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	4 N T (1)	Pass
6 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

(1) Showing two Aces and the King of a bid suit and guaranteeing some outside strength to justify the slam try.

The opening lead was the heart ten and South won with the Ace in his own hand. He now very carelessly laid down the spade Ace, and the tragedy descended when West showed out. South, of course, should have led the first round of spades from dummy, finessing the ten spot, as this safety play would guarantee the fulfillment of a contract of six—which was all South had bid—against any distribution but four in the West hand

South set about to repair the damage. He led a diamond to dummy's Ace and then trumped a small diamond in his hand. Next the heart Jack was played and overtaken by dummy's Queen, and another diamond returned and trumped. The club was then finessed and a fourth diamond trumped in South's hand.

The dummy was now re-entered with the club Ace and the diamond King led. This play had East completely fixed. East actually trumped the diamond King with the spade Queen, hoping that the declarer would overruff and then lead up to the tenace in trumps. However, South studied the situation for a while and then very shrewdly underttumped with the spade eight. East now had to lead the club Jack and South discarded the King of hearts, trumping with the four of spades in dummy. A heart lead from dummy now rendered East completely helpless, and the last two tricks were won with trumps in the South hand.

Tomorrow's Hand

South, Dealer

Oatmeal Soap and Lavender Sachets

By Juliet Shelby

BABY'S SKIN needs special attention too. It is very delicate and can easily be chafed or irritated, and so make the infant fretful. The wise mother, in order to prevent a rash or irritation from an inferior product or one that is too strong for the tender skin carefully selects the soaps and powders which she uses on her precious baby.

For generations English mothers have used a cereal soap that has proven the acme of content and service. And we must all admit that Englishwomen know how to keep their own skin smooth and lovely as well as their children's.

This soap is now imported and if you are shopping for baby or friend's baby, don't fail to buy the gift box which includes two bars of this lovely oatmeal soap and a can of triturated oatmeal talc. These products will keep baby contented and at ease and the price of the set makes gift buying a pleasure. See for yourself.

Speaking of the English, for two hundred years in the streets of London quaint characters have sold the lavender flower to keep clothes and linens fresh and fragrant. No flower equals the neutrality of scent or freshness of the lavender and it is no wonder that it has had two generations of popularity.

Today these fragrant flowers are scientifically compressed into little bags so that their penetrating, fresh tang will last longer. And you may buy a set of six lavender sachets, daintily boxed and tied with ribbon so that you may slip one over a dress hanger or closet hook, as well as sprinkle them among your best linens. Such a set makes a practical and fragrant gift and eliminates one or two names on that "I must give her something" list, for the price is small.

If you wish to know the name of this baby set or the sachet bags, phone Juliet Shelby, Liberty 4000. If you prefer writing for this information send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Miss Shelby, Boston Evening American, Boston.

Neck Hollows

Question: I have several hollow looking places in my neck. I am forty-eight years old, and with the exception of my neck, I am quite young looking. Is there anything I can do to improve my neck. R. R. H.

Arlington Heights.

Answer: Neck hollows always make a woman appear older looking than she really is. Bad posture brings them and malnutrition may be a factor. The following exercise may be helpful. Clasp the hands behind the head, little fingers resting on the hair line. Lift the chest, throw the head back, press firmly with the hands, so as to offer resistance to the backward movement of the head. Keep hands in the same position, turning the head from side to side.

Veins in Hands

Question: The veins in my hands are very large and noticeable. Is there any lotion or cream that would help to correct this condition? The veins seem to be more prominent in cold weather.

Mrs. P. L., Dedham....

Answer: You should keep your hands out of hot water as much as possible. Cold water is almost as bad, so when washing your hands be sure to use only tepid water. Give your hands as little exercise as possible until this condition is improved. You might try massaging them gently with cocoanut oil.

He was arrested on a [illegible] charge.

BARRY GRILLED IN SWINDLE

By International News Service

Chicago, Nov. 21.—Dave (Long Count) Barry, 45, referee at the last Dempsey-Tunney fight, submitted to further police questioning today as four others were held in connection with a $26,000 swindle at the Amalgamated Trust and Savings Bank.

[illegible] Barry denied [illegible] knowledge of the swindle plot [illegible] by Otto Van Derck, 23, [illegible] ledger clerk at the bank.

Van Derck implicated Barry and [illegible] others, explaining that he wanted to get married Thanksgiving Day and wanted to clear [illegible]

According to the young clerk's statement, the swindle was executed through the Dave Barry Enterprises, Inc., and Dave Barry, Inc. Overdrafts [illegible] on these two firms were covered up by falsifying the bank's books, Van Derck said.

Barry insisted he was merely the [illegible] head of the two firms [illegible] the details of financial management to Joseph Basata, 58, one of those under arrest.

Basata, under the name of Joseph F. Marcino, was freed from State Prison at Charlestown, Mass., in [illegible] through legal efforts of Charles [illegible], where he was serving time for embezzling $200,000 from a Warren, Mass., bank.

Bank officials stopped $26,000 of [illegible] allegedly put through yesterday as part of the plot. They were [illegible] to Barry, who had a $21 [illegible] in the bank. Basata had countersigned the drafts, two for $5000 each and two for $5,000 each.

In return for his part in the asserted plot, Van Derck said he received less than $200 and some sandwiches and beer.

Marcino Indicted in Wrecking N. Y. Firm

By Associated Press

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 21.—Joseph Marcino, arrested in Chicago in connection with a bank swindle, was indicted in Buffalo in 1933 for wrecking the Niagara Life Insurance Company with a loss of $[illegible], a former member of the [illegible] attorney's staff said today.

Marcino was returned here in 1930, but because of lack of evidence was not tried.

Marcino was said to have fled to Mexico after the collapse of the insurance company, a bank in Philadelphia and another in Warren, Mass., with which he was connected.

In the Warren case he served time in Atlanta and Charlestown.

He 'Can't Get Rid of Her'; Her Divorce Fails, Too

Mrs. Mary E. Odiorne, 29, former [illegible] beauty prize winner, who was married to Joseph W. Odiorne, [illegible] of West Newbury today after her uncontested divorce plea was turned down in Salem probate court.

Seven years earlier her husband was similarly unsuccessful in breaking their marriage ties. The couple have been separated since June 1927. In his divorce suit, Odiorne had named William H. Dyleski, a former member of the bar, as corespondent. Dyleski appeared for Mrs. Odiorne under power of attorney.

Asked by Judge Edward B. O'Brien if her alleged [illegible] with other men caused him to leave her, Odiorne said:

"No, not to me. I just wanted to get rid of her. We couldn't get along at all."

GASPAR BACON'S SON FREED

William B. Bacon, 23, oldest son of Lieutenant-Governor Gaspar G. Bacon, was arrested on a charge of drunkenness in the Back Bay today.

After several hours in a police cell he appeared before Judge James H. Devlin in central court wearing a wrinkled tuxedo and was released without having to plead as he had no previous record of arrest.

Young Bacon, a Harvard graduate, was arrested after a car in which he was riding with Henry W. Poett, Jr., a Californian stopping at the Harvard Club, had collided with a bakery truck at Boylston street, near Exeter.

Poett, slightly hurt in the accident, was arraigned on a drunkenness charge, pleaded not guilty and was held in $300 bail on a continuance to November 26.

The truck with which the car collided was overturned, its driver, James J. O'Brien, of Grayson street, Dorchester, escaping injury.

BRAVE LITTLE BETTY PLANS FOR SANTA AND HER JOBLESS FATHER WONDERS

This Is Life

ROBERT E. ROGERS

I suppose Kenneth L. Roberts [illegible] first newspaper man knows more about [illegible] the Revolutionary War and the War of 1812 than even the historians.

The historians deal primarily with [illegible] and ideas. Roberts deals in [illegible]. It is up to him to [illegible] stories [illegible] up [illegible] me the petty and interesting mosaic [illegible] that fit together to make the [illegible] picture.

Robert E. Rogers

This feeling ever comes to me with each new book of his Arundel series that I read. 'Arundel,' the first, had to do with the Arnold expedition against Quebec at the beginning of the Revolutionary War.

"[illegible] Arundel" carried on the story of [illegible] Maine [illegible] camp in Canada [illegible] the Saratoga campaign, with Arnold still as the hero.

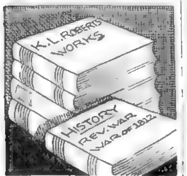
I suppose rather I hope there will be a third comparable in epic sweep and [illegible] telling of Arnold's treason.

For Arnold is Roberts' hero and he apparently is out to prove him a great and misunderstood man, the victim of forces beyond his control.

In between he has written two shorter novels about the maritime aspects of the later and less glorious war. He does not tell of the greater actions of the Chesapeake and the Shannon or the Constitution and the Guerriere, but of the smaller vessels outward bound from Arundel, or peaceful merchantmen coming home from the East, or privateersmen fitted out to prey on British shipping.

Vivid Pictures

And incidentally, he gives us the most vivid and authentic pictures possible of the life of American prisoners who have fallen into British hands—their life on board captured prizes, their life in the infamous Dartmoor prison, (as in "The Lively Lady") and now their life in the hulks, those prison ships made of the hull of an old ship of the line, where French and American prisoners alike starve and freeze between decks.



K. L. ROBERTS WORKS
HISTORY REV. WAR WAR OF 1812

This volume which tells of the fate of the Olive Branch of Arundel, captured by a Britisher, its owner killed, and the subsequent fate of its crew, is called "Captain Caution" (Doubleday Doran), and gives us a new angle on the fate of Yankees unlucky enough to fall into the hands of the British.

It explains thoroughly that hatred of the English which lingered so long among the old Yankee stock, just as it still lingers among the Irish.

There is Corunna Moore, the young girl who devotes herself to revenging her father's death; Slade, captain of captured slaver who ingratiates himself with Corunna and betrays her; Argandeau, the Frenchman to whom all women are "rabbits" or "pigeons" and his mirthful prey, and, finally, Captain Caution himself, Daniel Marvin out of Arundel, chief officer of the lost Olive Branch, so named by the indignant Corunna because he refuses to fight unless he has a chance to win.

Sheer Scholarship

It is he who escapes from the prison ship after beating a gigantic Negro, the pet of his gaolers, who seeks aid from Talleyrand, that influential and equivocal figure of the Napoleonic regime, because once in his earlier days of exile he stopped at Arundel and bought Maine lands from General Putnam and left without paying his debts of honor—too much hot buttered rum—and after Marvin has secured a ship, he invents a device he calls the gangway pendulum, its first appearance so far as I know, in maritime fiction, by which he can fire a broadside point blank and always on an even keel. He sinks the slaver's ship, rescues his Corunna, and lays his course for home.

The amount of sheer scholarship in this, as in the earlier three novels of the series, is heartbreaking.

And the ability to put together all this detailed research into a living, persuasive, reasonable tale, with its feet on the ground at every minute, making the historic past come alive for the reader in startling fashion, marks the man as an artist of the first rank.

The Arundel series should be required reading in every American school. There is nothing now being published so informative and inspirational for those of our people who lack an old American background. They are, in themselves, worth a whole course in "Americanization."

Tea, huh? And it seems unfortunately to be for one, not two. But, anyhow, it's probably coffee. And, whether it is strong or weak, its lucky recipient at the Cambridge Y. M. C. A. ought not to kick—so long as dark-haired Nancy Faxon is serving it. She's one of a group of Cambridge society girls who are acting as waitresses at luncheons given daily to workers in the "Y's" campaign for $15,000.

You can't see what it is that pretty Joan Read, Cambridge debutante, is toting on that tray of hers. But the smile she's wearing will make whatever she brings acceptable.

They call it the Cambridge Young MEN'S Christian Association—but the place was certainly full of girls when the Candid Cameraman wandered in. It seems there's a drive on for a much-needed $15,000, and young society women of the city are doing their bit. Here's Priscilla Gano, who is fixing up something pretty fancy for a campaign luncheon.

Betty Just 7

FATHER OUT OF WORK, MOTHER IN HOSPITAL

If at all necessary, that red-suited fellar with the white whiskers (we always called him Santa Claus in the old days) should break a leg this year to make it a Merry Christmas for a little girl who has broken her leg 13 times.

Speaking, of course, of Betty Mark, Jamacia Plain's seven-year-old miss whose right leg, because of a lack of calcium in her bones, has been fractured no less than a baker's dozen of times, with as many trips to City hospital.

Betty is at her home, 8 Emsella terrace, following her most recent "unlucky break," but her mother is in the hospital and, according to a letter received by the Boston Evening American today, from Dad Herbert L. Mark, the Christmas prospect isn't very bright for Betty and her five-year-old brother, Walter.

Father Ill, Too

If she doesn't break a leg in the meantime, this will be Betty's first Christmas at home in four years, Daddy Mark points out in the following message:

"Betty is home now and is planning on a real Christmas at home with her brother, Walter, but unless your valuable paper can arrange things I am afraid that she will be greatly disappointed in her first Christmas at home in four years, as I am out of work and Mrs. Mark is at the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital in a free bed, thanks to the social service department, recovering from a very serious operation.

"Mrs. Mark is a No. 1 cardiac case and will have to have at least three months complete rest after she gets home and she will not be home before December 20, a few days before the holiday.

"I have tried hard to keep my home together for the sake of my wonderful wife and two great children but unless things come my way soon, I am afraid I will have to give up.

"I have been sickly myself for the past six months, but have said nothing about it as there was enough trouble without my adding to it. We are sleeping between the folds of blankets as we have no bed linen and the children are in need of warm clothing and bedding for this coming winter.

"I certainly hope that your paper can help make this Christmas a real one for my family, especially Betty and Walter, as they are both telling me what they want Santa Clause to bring them for Christmas, and it breaks my heart to hear them, as I know that I cannot do anything for them.

"The doctors put Betty on a diet of eggs, milk, oranges and all kinds of fresh fruit and vegetables, also cod liver oil, but they did not tell me where I could get the money to buy these things as we are lucky to get enough to eat of ordinary things."

In ordering the shutdown, the board of health announced that three definite and several suspected cases have been reported.

RAVAGED BODIES BORE MYSTERY MARK

By Associated Press

Los Angeles, Nov. 21—Descriptions of the two starved and thirst ravaged bodies found Saturday on an island in the isolated Galapagos group were radioed to the Associated Press today by Captain Manuel Rodriguez of the tuna clipper Santa Amaro, who made the tragic discovery.

"The bodies were lying on their backs," Captain Rodriguez reported.

"The larger one was about six feet, bald in front with a small tuft of brown hair in back.

"The head was resting on a bundle of clothes. Clothes of the body were light colored.

"The other body was fifty feet away. It was five and a half feet long, very slight, with thick, long hair, four inches long. It wore pants, cut or torn off at knee."

Part of the message was lost in transmission owing to the weakness of the sending set.

BAD WOLF

Farmers Afraid

By Associated Press

Chicago, Nov. 21—A whole pack of big bad wolves has invaded the Fox Lake district, about 30 miles northwest of Chicago, and the farmers are afraid.

The wolves, described as the timber type, were reported to have killed more than 50 sheep in the past month. One farmer, who lost 43 valuable Shropshire sheep, was so concerned that he shipped the remainder of his flock away.

Porter Has Call in Quincy Rat War

Any who could qualify as a "Pied Piper" might find willing ears in the Merrymount section of Quincy unless Howard Porter, board of health member who specializes in ridding sections of skunks and what not, gets his bid in first.

The Merrymount residents are up in arms over the influx of rats that have dashed into their cultivated flower gardens and frightened children since Quincy [illegible] over two dumps for extension of Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

Formal demands have been made on the board of health to rid the section of the pests. Some even suggested Porter, who had some notable success recently against a skunk invasion.

BYRD MEN

Add To U. S.

By Associated Press

Little America, Antarctica, Nov. 21 (via Mackay Radio)—A vast new plateau, flat as the plains of Kansas, was added today to the maps of the Byrd expedition.

Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd said he believed the area was the long sought link between the Andes ranges of South America and the mountains of West Antarctica.

The discovery was made by an aerial survey crew under Harold June, chief pilot. Members of the expedition said the flight broadens American claims in the area, east and south of the Edsel Ford range and adjoining Marie Byrd land.

School Board Member Pulls a Huey Long; Jewish Basket Champions ↕ Racing War About To Be Settled; Lewis Has Revenge

By AUSTEN LAKE

THE FOOTBALL OFFICIAL IS heavily loaded with care, not the least of which is to be fair.

The complex rules and special regulations which a football official must keep in mind would tax the intellect of a bench jurist, and the official is not allowed to retire to some cozy reference room and study the evidence or read precedent before rendering an opinion.

Austen Lake

No, sir! He must call them promptly with no time for fumbling or without recourse to the book with its hundreds of fussy little quirks and hair splittings.

So, now comes a Mr. Russell Wood, the Cambridge school committeeman who, as such, sways the character and upbringing of the kids in his district, and who charges that the officials in the recent Cambridge Latin-Framingham high game "threw" the contest to the opposition by penalizing his side at a critical juncture of the game.

Mr. Wood, in a moment of pique, divides football officials into two classes. "Some are bad," he says, "and some are worse." And he promises at the next school committee meeting that rules will be passed giving local men the jobs of refereeing sports contests in Cambridge.

WELL, I HAVE FOUND THAT football officials are various, and some might be impressed by hoodlum visitations or by political pressure. But one and all, in my long experience, are officials because they love the game and wish to keep finger-tip touch with their fleeting youth.

The pay in most cases is small and calls for an outlay of time and energy far beyond the return. But in the game's history no football official's record for honest dealing has ever been smirched by scandal, which is more than can be said for the guild of school committeemen.

I am not pointing at Mr. Wood in this instance, only speaking generally. But I have often wondered why men possessing a thin veneer of education and small intellect, tumble over each other to get elected a school board, which seldom carries any pay and is, theoretically, a post of honor and dignity.

But school committee jobs are rich political plums if a man is not queasy about favoring the rich supply contractors and book merchants.

Such favors are often given, and I wish only to draw a comparison between the scope of a school committeeman's temptation and the record of the group, and that of the football official, who is subject to forehanded squawks by coaches and long shot criticisms from newsmen and fans, who sit remotely in the stands on inflated rubber doughnuts with flasks of alcoholic beverages on their hips, and who know very little, if anything, about what is taking place on the field below.

WORLD'S CHAMPION BASKETBALL team, the professional Philadelphia Spahs, who come here to play Boston's Trojans, next Monday night, is an all-Jewish combination composed of Moe Goldman, Shikey Gqothofer, Cy Kaselman, Inkey Lautman and Harry Litwack.

Jewish boys have dominated basketball for years. The reason is that basketball has been one of the few games which can be played in congested city areas, where Jewish immigrant parents first settled.

Given opportunity, Jewish youth make good athletes. Three of them hold world boxing titles now—Max Baer, Bob Olin and Barney Ross.

More lately, as their people have prospered and moved to the suburbs, where the boys learn the roomier games, Jews are cutting a figure in college football and professional baseball. Izzy Weinstock of Pitt, Rosenberg of Southern California, among the many.

Years ago Ty Cobb predicted to me that Jewish boys would sometime make their mark in major league ball. Then there were none in the majors. But now there are Hank Greenberg, Phil Weintraub, Harry Danning, Moe Berg and Buddy Myer.

REALIZING THAT THEIR MUTUAL assault, in an effort to grab all the Massachusetts racing gravy, is likely to disgust the public and block the naming of a race commission until after December 31, in which case there will be no 1935 racing in this state, the O'Hara and Eastern Horse Club factions may join forces within a few days.

The theory, when the boys are out to make some money, is that half a fruit-cake is better than none. I believe, shortly that you will hear how the social register and professional horse people have suddenly linked arms to stand under the lovely shower bath of public cash together.

At least, there is a sudden lull of yelling cuss words at each other and a tendency to speak sweetheart language, which points suspiciously to collaboration in which O'Hara will yank one of the public milch cow's udders and the E. H. C. will agree to yank the other.

STRANGLER LEWIS, THE WRESTLER, is growing venerable, stiff at the joints and floppy about the middle. He is nearing his athletic dotage. Yet Strangler has just fulfilled a private vendetta that has been years in the making.

He threw Henri DeGlane, the Frenchman and former champion, in Paris before a congregation of Henri's own countrymen.

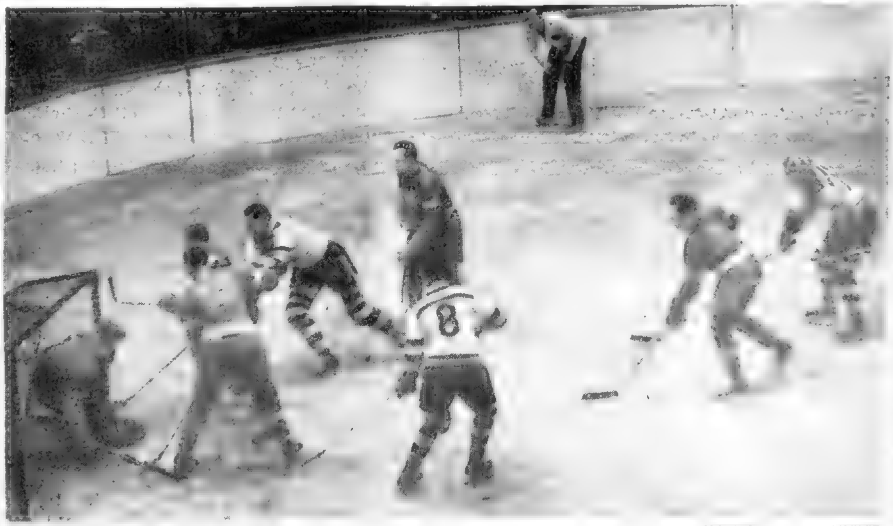
This is the first time that Strangler and Henri have met since the fatal night, five years ago, in Montreal, when DeGlane screamed foul, while waving an elbow aloft on which there was distinctly, the imprint of a full set of teeth.

The Montreal athletic commissioner, a French-Canadian dentist in private life, promptly awarded the match and world title to Henri, despite the facts that Lewis had previously unshipped his bridgework and left it in the dressing room. There was a strong suspicion that DeGlane had bitten his own arm.

That incident, dear children, brought the world title back to Boston and caused Lewis to swear an unholy oath that he would bounce the chestnut filling out of Henri at some future date.

The date was Monday night in Paris, although by this time, neither DeGlane nor Lewis are any longer in the championship foreground.

Preview of Bruins Winning Goal Over Detroit Red Wings at Garden



Bruins had their second home victory to their credit today. A goal by Johnny Gagnon did it. It came in the second period and beat Detroit Red Wings, 1-0. Also gave the Bruins leadership in the American division. Gagnon made the only score, but the Bruins were continually threatening. Above play took place in first period. It didn't register but it was a harbinger of victory. Clapper had grabbed the puck in Detroit's territory. Upon reaching the middle zone, he passed forward to Barry. Marty went over the line and into Detroit territory with Babe Siebert trailing. Barry whipped a pass out to the right wing, and Clapper shot it right back at him. Barry let fly a shot. Normie Smith saved. Before Clapper could get back into position for the rebound, he was covered by Yank Boyd and Walter Buswell, after evading Ebbie Goodfellow. Moseley, Adzigian in Backfield Berth Fight

There'll be a repetition of the age-old conflict between the rapier and the bludgeon when Harvard and Yale clash Saturday, though the sanded floor of the arena gives way to the greensward of the Yale Bowl.

The rapier will be wielded by the rubbery right arm of Jerry Roscoe, Yale's slim Tiger killer. Harvard will represent the bludgeon, though there may have been few signs of the overpowering brute about the Harvard eleven this disastrous season.

Yale quite clearly will depend upon Roscoe to carry the Elis through to a Big Three championship. Every Yale victory this season can be traced directly to Roscoe's ability to park the pigskin directly into the hands of an eligible receiver.

Passing has been Harvard's main weakness all season. The Crimson hasn't been able to find a passer of its own, with Fred Moseley laid up with repeated injuries, and it hasn't been able to prevent its opponents from detecting openings in its porous aerial defense.

CRIMSON ATTACK WEAK

The Crimson's running attack hasn't been anything to rave about, either. But weak as it has been, Yale's has been even worse.

While Yale's forward wall, like Harvard's has been able to stop a running attack with fair amount of success, offensively it hasn't shown enough drive to punch holes in a paper bag.

So Harvard's preparation for Saturday defensively have been to stop Roscoe's passes. offensively, contrary to the general opinion, Harvard intends to depend not upon its passes, but its running attack to wear down the Bulldog's sturdy defense.

If it develops into a question of manpower, Harvard will have the edge. Yale has a good first team. The less said of its replacements the better. Harvard, on the other hand, appears to have a certain balance which Yale lacks.

TWO SEASONED ELEVENS

The inability of the Harvard coaching staff to field the same team two weeks running, now appears to stand the Crimson in good stead. The constant reversion of the lineups has seasoned at least two full elevens which Eddie Casey can throw against the Elis.

Even today, Casey can't name his starting eleven. He has two left halfbacks, Fred Moseley and Johnny Adzigian, and he can't quite pick one over the other.

Harvard's second team isn't quite so good as the starters. But there's not the noticeable drops that is apparent in the Yale replacements.

TEAM C EXPERIENCED

The curious note of Team C is that it contains more experienced players than either Team A or Team B. In the backfield are Parquette, quarter; Gibbs and Blackwood, halfbacks, and Locke, fullback.

Blackwood has been a starting halfback all season, and Locke, last fall, was Harvard's individual star.

In the line, Bobby Knapp opened the season for the Crimson at left end. Frank Schumann, the left guard, was a regular guard last fall and started the Yale game. Littlefield, the other guard, is another varsity holdover.

Yanks Give 5 Players for Coast Batting Ace

By Associated Press

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 21—Trading on the Baseball course was brisk today. Charlie Graham, from way out in Frisco, rang the bell with Outfielder Joe Demaggio, the star Coast hitter. The New York Yankees bid him in at the modest rate of five ball players, three outright and two on option.

The deal is all cooked but stays warming in the open until the skeptical Yanks are satisfied Demaggio is sound of wind and limb. He hung up a coast record last season by hitting safely in 64 consecutive games. Graham says e's better than Paul Waner was when Waner left the coast.

But Demaggio hurt his knee a [illegible] not until the easterners are sure that knee is all right will Demaggio put on their uniform. He's for delivery next fall, with the Yanks privileged to call him during the season.

The St Louis Browns and the Cleveland Indians have gotten together on a trade, but they won't say what it is.

At another post the Pirates an the Cubs are trying to get together on a swap of Freddie Lindstrom and Pitcher Larry French for Pitcher Guy Bush, Jim Weaver and outfielder Babe Herman. If the Pirates balk on Herman the Cubs might keep him and trade English.

7 YANKS REACH QUARTER FINAL

By Associated Press

Melbourne, Nov. 21—Seven of eight American entrants won their opening matches today in the Centenary professional golf tournament and gained the quarter-finals tomorrow.

Ky Laffoon of Denver prevented the meet from quickly developing into an all-American event when he missed a three-foot putt on the 37th hole and lost to Martin Smith, Victoria professional.

Jimmy Thompson of Los Angeles winner of last week's $5000 Centenary open, barely scraped through with a spectacular one-up victory over Rufus Stewart, portly South Australian. Three down on the 18th, Thompson squared the match on the 23rd but was again two down on the 33rd. He finally drew even on the 35th and captured the 36th when Stewart missed a three-footer.

The other Americans won almost as they pleased. Paul Runyan of White Plains, N. Y., taking up the day's biggest margin with an 11 and 9 victory over Sam Richardson of New South Wales.

Harry Cooper of Chicago beat Teddy Naismith of Victoria, 10 and 9; Leo Diegel downed Charlie Gray of New South Wales, 9 and 7; Densmore Shute of Philadelphia beat Harry Boorer of Victoria, 4 and 3; Craig Wood of Deal, N. J., trimmed Fergus McMahon of South Australia, 3 and 1, while Joe Ezar of Waco, Tex., defeated Lou Kelly of New South Wales, 2 and 1. First prize in the match played is £500 (about $2500).

Grid Chef Also Picks Princeton Over Green

By Max Kase

Alphabet soup, a nourishing dish used as a builder upper because of its vitamins and calories, has been drafted to the higher cause of gridiron science by the professor in making his diagnosis for games this week-end.

As apparatus this week, in addition to the alphabet soup, the professor has used:

1—A finely meshed ladle.
2—An electrical attachment.
3—A bell which chimes a golden, musical note.

The system is as follows: Into a rich turtle soup (tomato bisque, chicken okra, vegetable, chicken, creamed celery or pepper-pot soups may also be used but with less satisfactory results) the professor pours small wheatined alphabets of the vrious colleges competing on Saturday.

An electrical contact is established between the bell and the finely mashed ladle. The seine-like implement is dipped deep into the turtle soup.

A letter is caught in the delicate meshes of the ladle and when such "catch" is snared, the bell chimes a deep, vibrant note. It signals the winner of one of the Saturday games.

In some cases, the results have proved amazing, colossal, stupendous—well, surprising at any rate. In others, they were just what might be expected of alphabets and turtle soup. With no further interruption, the report is submitted.

HARVARD-YALE. The traditional atmosphere will help make the score close. The iron man epic against Princeton will take something out of the Yale regulars, but the Blue will put Harvard further in the red on the losing side. It is Yale.

ARMY-NOTRE DAME. Army will be thrown back for the second setback of the season. The Irish are beginning to march in high.

PRINCETON - DARTMOUTH. Too bad for Dartmouth, weakened and riddled by injuries. It's Princeton.

COLUMBIA-SYRACUSE. There's no denying the pessimism of sad Lou Little on this occasion. A vote for Orange.

TEMPLE-VILLANOVA. The Warner system clashes with the Norte Dame system. But Pop Warner is still the master, and it will be Temple.

TUFTS-MASS. STATE. Science being science, knowing no fears nor prejudices, I again arouse the ire of Tufts enthusiasts. Mass. State will spoil an otherwise perfect Tufts season.

RUTGERS-COLGATE. The ladle snared a 'C' which just shows what a discriminating ladle it is. Colgate, of course.

ST. ANSELMS-NEW HAMPSHIRE. Two of the Saints' keymen will be missing from this game. It will be New Hampshire.

NORTHWESTERN-MICHIGAN. More bad news for Michigan. And by the same reasoning, good for Northwestern.

CHICAGO-ILLINOIS. Zuppke's boys will make up for that Badger setback. A nod for the Illini.

PENN STATE-BUCKNELL. P S.—It will be the Staters.

MUHLENBERG - DICKINSON. Not which is the better team but which is the worse. Dickinson looks the weaker so it will be Muhlenberg.

So there it is. A round dozen diagnoses—and Saturday's final complete of the American will either confirm or deny the analysis.

[illegible] the two games [illegible] the Bruins at the Garden [illegible] If I am wrong [illegible] of Sir Frank [illegible] for the future.

WIN THREE OF FOUR

The [illegible] opened [illegible] season [illegible] and broke [illegible] losing [illegible] Maple Leafs [illegible] of a [illegible] in the final [illegible] the Red Wings.

Naturally, Frank was elated over the showing of his charges especially in Detroit where the Bruins have never met with any real success.

But, like the seasoned manager he is, Frank knew the fans would soon forget what happened in Detroit, in the event his charges blew a couple of home games.

Therefore, he was set on beating St Louis and Detroit. Now there are few managers in professional sport who would even consider, let alone dare to gamble under the circumstances.

All but [illegible] Frank Patrick type would have [illegible] safe.

LETS ROOKIES STAY IN

Well, let's look back at the St Louis and [illegible] games. The Bruins were on the winning end of both [illegible] by the scantiest possible margin, 1 to 0.

Against St Louis the Bruins protected their [illegible] for almost 43 minutes and last night they scored in the fifth minute of the second period.

Although a [illegible] is anything but a safe margin, Frank Patrick did not hesitate to make frequent [illegible] both games. There [illegible] risk incurred on forward [illegible] replacements but the [illegible] is true regarding defensemen.

Before the [illegible] game at the Garden Frank [illegible] he would make regular replacements on his outer defense, and he has been true to his promise.

Eddie Shore and Babe Siebert have been spelled by Tony Savage and Jean Pusie. The rookie defense men have lived up to Patrick's expectations, for neither St. Louis nor Detroit was able to score at the Garden.

PLAYOFF BERTH ASSURED

Under the Patrick system, if Savage and Pusie are of major league calibre, they will make the grade. Probably they both appreciate the confidence Frank has in their ability, but if they are still doubtful the realization of this fact will come in the near future.

On the other hand, if Savage and Pusie had been removed whenever the heavy cannonading was laid down, they might well have inferred that they were not making good, which opinion would doubtless have been the reaction of the fans.

String along with Fank Patrick. He knows his hockey. Even at this early stage of the championship race, it is a foregone conclusion that the Bruins will be in the playoffs with points to spare.

JUDGE SCHILLING RULES BEST ON BOWIE RACE CARD

Mr. Boston Says:—

Friedman and Schaaf Glorious Youths Fate of Athletes

By Jack Conway

IT SEEMS AS if it was [illegible] last night that Ernie Schaaf and Al Friedman [illegible] out in a [illegible] at the Garden.

Today both of [illegible] young men [illegible].

Mr Boston

Friedman's life was snuffed out when he was struck by a hit-and-run driver in Hollywood on Sunday night.

I received a letter from Friedman a few weeks ago. He told me of his new life on the Coast. He was happy over the fact he was once more gliding into the ring in the role of a boxing instructor. He liked the feel of canvas under his feet and the smell of rosin in his nostrils.

Mrs. Friedman had a beauty parlor on the Coast and was happy with Al and their three-year-old boy.

Gave Best to Ring

FRIEDMAN WAS never a champion or even a near champion, but he nevertheless did much to help boxing. Every time he stepped into the ring he gave the fans full value. He didn't know what it was to stall or tin can.

Friedman used to make his home in Roslindale. He built up a big following in that section of the city on account of his own fine character and his ability to fight.

Friedman had only one style when in the ring. He would keep driving forward tossing punches with both hands. He was a modern Battling Nelson.

LIFE OFTEN passes swiftly for our greatest athletes. When Schaaf and Friedman traded blows in the Garden ring a few years back nobody thought they would both be dead today.

The Schaafs, Friedmans, Lassmans, Sheridans and other athletic stars who pass from this life when still young have made a lasting impression with all who have had the opportunity to see them perform. My great regret is that such young men who give so much to life should leave it so early.

Brouillard Is Fit

LOU BROUILLARD will leave for New York tomorrow [illegible] for his ten-round bout with Al Gainor of New Haven which will be staged in the New York Garden tomorrow night. Brouillard is down to 160 pounds, and believes he will punch his way to a victory over Gainor.

If Brouillard wins, he will challenge Bob Olin, new light heavyweight champion. Brouillard has already beaten Olin twice.

THERE SHOULD be plenty of action at the weekly amateur boxing show of the Irish-American A. A. tomorrow night. [illegible] of Providence and [illegible] of Lowell, two of the best of the New England 147 pounders, will compete.

Jerry LaBella will show in the 118-pound division. Jackie Capparelli will do his stuff in the [illegible] pound group, while Jake Firebug of the West End will compete in the [illegible] pound division.

STAR PORTER STANDS OUT IN FOURTH RACE

FIRST RACE
JUDGE SCHILLING, GRAND PRINCE, FIRE REEL

JUDGE SCHILLING may get the form players off to a flying start. The veteran just oozes with class and shapes up as a standout. A repetition of that smashing race behind Volta Maid of only a few days back is all that is needed to [illegible] here. Contention, it [illegible] finished by GRAND PRINCE. The latter is a fair sort [illegible] company and figures best [illegible]. FIRE REEL was [illegible] Canada.

SECOND RACE
HEADIN HOME, DAY SIGNAL, DOUBLE SWEEP

I find it hard to separate HEADIN HOME and DAY SIGNAL in this affair. However I'm going to tempt fate by stringing along with the former. The [illegible] thoroughbred displayed high speed in placing to [illegible] out DAY SIGNAL, [illegible] from the barrier, may [illegible] if she can open up a [illegible] during the early stages. DOUBLE SWEEP should break into the picture if started.

THIRD RACE
LITTLE LIE, CANTERBOY, BANISH FEAR

I'm going to toss out LITTLE LIE'S last race. That effort was too poor to be true. A repetition of [illegible] of her previous good races would make her a cinch. CANTER BOY beat the top one off many lengths in that last race and looms a dangerous [illegible]. BANISH FEAR [illegible].

FOURTH RACE
STAR PORTER, POMPEIUS, HOPE TO DO

STAR PORTER, always partial to this track, has only to run back to any one of his good Laurel races in order to grace the winner's circle. The fleet son of The Porter drubbed Kiswagon in one of these efforts and the latter came right back at Pimlico to beat the best in training with ease. POMPEIUS was [illegible] the best horse [illegible] to HOPE TO DO the other day. The Boston colorbearer [illegible] at the [illegible] word of [illegible] a rock [illegible] HOPE TO DO looks next best.

FIFTH RACE
DARK HOPE, EASIEST WAY, GALLANT MAC

DARK HOPE, fifth to the Prince George Handicap, was a victim of poor racing luck in last Saturday's [illegible]. [illegible] being in tight quarters most of the journey, he would have been a great deal closer to the [illegible] as a stick. [illegible] EASIEST WAY [illegible] race shown by a plater over this strip in his one start. However it's a question if he has class enough to cope with the top ones. GALLANT MAC's [illegible] was not as bad as outward appearance would indicate.

SIXTH RACE
VOLTA MAID, STOCKS, WISE ADVOCATE

[illegible] the weights arrangements [illegible] to string along with VOLTA MAID. The latter is in at a feather of 104 pounds and [illegible] off a corking second to [illegible]. STOCKS, a fast [illegible] worker, will prove a stubborn customer if able to go the [illegible]. WISE ADVOCATE appears [illegible] 115 pounds but [illegible] no worse than [illegible].

SEVENTH RACE
POLO BAR, DEEDIE, OUTBOUND

[illegible] along with POLO BAR, 117 pounds and all. The Mrs. Robert Heighe colorbearer was never better, and the [illegible] should be right down his alley. DEEDIE, a [illegible] Narragansett performer, is receiving a large [illegible] in weights from the top [illegible] and may prove troublesome. OUTBOUND a winner last out [illegible].

Horses to Watch

STEELHEAD—Long Shot possibility at Bowie. In good hands and razor sharp. Might surprise.

ANN O'RILEY—In and out filly at New England tracks this season but is worth tabbing at Bay Meadows.

ZORANA—Out at Epsom Downs today. Should outdistance Kal Finn to take all.

Mat Results

Lincoln, Neb.—John Pesek, 200, Ravenna, Neb., threw John Evko, 215, New York, with wrist lock and body scissors. Doctor then declared Evko could not continue.

COUCCI SEEMS SURE TO PASS 200 MARK

By Dave Wilson

Bowie, Md., Nov. 21—With 194 victories to his credit, Silvio Coucci, contract rider for the Greentree stable, seems certain of reaching the 200 mark before the present meeting closes.

Coucci, who is America's second leading winning rider for the year, is only eight winning mounts back of Maurice Peters who performed on New England tracks the past summer.

[illegible] horsemen hereabouts are attributing the [illegible] of favorites [illegible] the racing strip.

[illegible] the track is very deep and [illegible] slower than other ovals, [illegible] most thoroughbreds and [illegible] good mudder show complete [illegible] for it and refuse to extend themselves.

Meanwhile [illegible] players are [illegible] on the ropes as a result of the series of upsets which have dominated this session since its opening [illegible] Thursday.

Doubt is expressed in some quarters that Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney's Equipoise will ever appear in [illegible] again. The world's second largest money winning thoroughbred appeared very sore in his slow gallop around the [illegible] this morning.

Rufus Feltner, an arrival from Narragansett Park, states he shipped Bright Pattern, Lucky Prance and Padlock direct to [illegible], West Va., where the Charles Town Jockey Club will open a 13 day meeting, beginning Saturday, Dec. 1.

There are 32 horses on the schooling list with the adding of Cloudet, Cloud Sweeper, Marching Home and Paradisical.

The halter brigade has taken 13 horses at this meeting up to Tuesday with the sum of $24,700 figuring in the transactions.

The latest to register claims are Big Show, by W. A. Jones, for $2000; Uncle Donald, by Short Haymaker, for $2000; Toytime, by J. B. Miller, for $2000, and Goldfin, by G. W. Coburn, for $1250.

Jockey Carl Hanford's broken left arm has healed sufficiently to permit his leaving the South Baltimore General Hospital. The lad who is under contract to the popular C. H. (Tobe) Trotter of Louisville, Ky., visited here today and gathered up his tack preparatory to leaving for the winter's racing at Miami.

Officials of the Bay Meadows track, California, seem to be having great difficulty in getting a sufficient field of horses for each race. The entries for today were so few that they were not posted until after the horse owners and track officials met in a conference.

A few days ago the track officials threatened to force the horse owners to vacate the track stables if they didn't run their horses more often.

This difficulty is not brought on by any feeling between the owners and officials but rather because of track conditions which permit only horses with mud qualities a chance to win. The Bay Meadows track is known as a heavy stretch.

When the San Anita track opens next month in Southern California it will mark the first horse racing in that district in 25 years.

And unless the crowds turn out in greater numbers than they are at present at the Bay Meadows track it's a sure bet racing won't last long in the Sunny State. Bay Meadows is just able to cover expenses, not to speak of the million dollars invested.

If purses are any incentive, the California tracks ought to be crowded to an overflowing capacity as the Bay Meadows Association will have offered more than $350,000 in purses by the time the present meet ends.

Also, its successor, the San Anita track, is offering more than $450,000 in prizes, of which the feature race on the card, the San Anita Handicap, will carry $100,000 in cash prizes. That purse in itself is attracting all the leading horses of the country.

Bob McCoy against Al Mercier for the N. E. heavyweight championship and a battle royal, in which four masked marvels clash, are the features of Alex MacLean's wrestling show at the Boston Arena tonight.

"Bibber" McCoy will be a 5-to-4 favorite to topple Mercier and take the New England crown and the $500 diamond-studded belt which goes with it in their two out of three falls match.

It will be a battle of flying tackles as executed by McCoy against the crushing hitch-kicks of Mercier. Their first meeting, when McCoy lost on a bad "break," was spectacular, and tonight's encounter is sure to be even more so.

In the semifinal Rebel Bob Russell will clash with Fred Carrone while special bouts will bring together Jim Wallis and Tommy Rae, Bull Komar and John "Whiskers" Maloney. Komar, the man with no neck, who is as broad as he is tall, and Maloney, long and stringy, are expected to stage a comical yet bruising bout.

A masked referee will be in the ring to call the four masked matmen into action for a bonus expected to be in the vicinity of $100. This battle royal among four hooded grapplers is something entirely novel in wrestling annals and is due to knock the clients right out into the aisles.

Preliminaries will be Joe Kujot vs. Jim Kendrick and Young Kid Sullivan vs. Eddie Edwards.

HARRIERS FLAY N. E. A. A. A. U. OFFICIALS

Count that month lost when the A. A. U. or some branch thereof is not being severly criticized.

Now its the New England branch of the organization that is charged with committing a faux pas.

It seems that six N. E. A. A. A. U. cross-country runners had visions of being sent to compete in the National hill and dale championships in Iowa.

But the officials decided they couldn't afford to appropriate $250 for the expenses of the trip.

Which was o. k. with the six runners, who planned to pay their own expenses until the executives, on another ballot, voted to send six delegates to the A. A. U. convention at Miami, a jaunt which should cost $1000 or more unless the delegates plan to go by cattle car, which they don't.

Whereupon the harriers up and inquired as to the purpose of the A. A. U. in general and the New England branch in particular.

"The constitution," said a spokesman for the runners, "reads that the object of the organization is the improvement and promotion of sports among those who engage in sport solely for pleasure and physical, mental and social benefits they derive therefrom and to whom sport is nothing more than an avocation.

"If that is so," the athlete continued, "we can't understand how the committee can refuse to appropriate $250 for six runners to go to Iowa while planning to send six delegates to Miami in fancy style.

"It would seem the object of the N. E. A. A. A. U. is not to promote amateur athletics but rather to promote joy rides for its officials.

"We were going to make the long trip to Iowa by bus and the University of Iowa had provided for our room and board there. That's why the trip was going to cost less than half what it would ordinarily.

"We realize there is a depression and when our request for $250 was turned down, we at first believed that the N. E. A. A. A. U. couldn't afford the appropriation and decided to pay our own expenses.

"But the trip is off now. We're not going to pay our way when there's enough money in the N. E. A. A. A. treasury to send six delegates on a vacation to Florida."

New $5000 Golf Prize at Nassau

New York, Nov. 21 (AP)—The pot of gold at the end of the winter golf trail was $5000 richer today as Colonel Henry L. Doherty, president of the Florida Year-'Round Clubs, announced a new tournament in Nassau, to be called the British Colonial Open.

The tourney, which will be played on the Bahamas Golf Club course December 18-20, will boost to $17,500 the total purse money to be offered by Colonel Doherty for play during a two-week period next month.

Huskies May Have Swimming Team

The Huskies may add swimming to their list of varsity sports, either this year or next. Already a freshman team has been assured, following the petition of students led by L. H. Conahay of Virginia.

The tank candidates will practice Tuesdays and Thursdays under Ray Millard, Boston Y. M. C. A. swimming instructor.

A. A. Plans Series With Coast League

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 21 (AP)—T. J. Hickey, president of the American Association, said today he was opening negotiations with the Pacific Coast League for a post-season series in event the International League did not shorten its season or abandon its play-off so as to close by September 15, as demanded by the American Association.

JOE M'KENNEY TO LOOK OVER NOTRE DAME

By Walter Kiley

There's nothing new about a coach scouting a rival team. That's all in the routine course of events. But Joe McKenney, Boston College coach, introduces a new wrinkle as he scouts a team which he probably never will face.

Joe, with his aides-de-camp, Ormsby and McNamara, will be in New York for the Army-Notre Dame game on Saturday. There, too, will be found Dr. Eddie Anderson, Purple head coach, and his assistants.

The connecting link is found in the fact that Notre Dame employs the Rockne system with the variations introduced by Elmer Layden. Layden is said to have several new fan-dangles up his sleeve, carefully preserved to spring on Army.

Dr. Eddie is also an advocate of the Notre Dame system, and, if anything new is to be employed, he wants to gain first hand information, with the intent of using it against the Eagles.

This being the case, McKenney will be there for defensive measures.

Scouting more and more becomes an integral part of a college football. Few are the modern coaches who lack a far-flung espionage system.

Andy Kerr is one of the most thorough in this respect. Every major eleven he plays is scouted in game and after game, so that by the time Colgate faces them, Kerr has his squad prepared.

Brown has had a particularly poor season. Colgate should win the Thanksgiving Day feature with little trouble. Yet Kerr has had Brown scouted in every game, even against such teams as Springfield.

Erny Pinckert, captain of the Redskins, has been the chief scout for Kerr in New England. He took in the Yale-Brown game and several others.

Joe McKenney had promised Pinckert that his scout at the Brown-Holy Cross game last Saturday would be glad to give him information about the Bruins. The Redskins were at Philadelphia.

It so happens that Dinny McNamara, chief Eagles' scout, was sick, so Bill Ormsby went to Providence instead. The "Pepperbox" used to play for Brown and his sympathies naturally lean toward his alma mater.

Imagine his embarrassment, then, when Pinckert turned up at Boston College with the intention of getting a full description of McLaughry's plays.

MELROSE ELEVEN COMING FAST AFTER SPUTTERING START

BERNIE RANKIN AT HALFBACK FOR YALE

New Haven, Ct., Nov. 21—Latest reports from the Yale camp indicate that Coach "Ducky" Pond is anxious to beat Harvard by the widest margin possible in Saturday's classic at the Bowl.

At least that's the only conclusion that can be drawn from the announcement that Bernie Rankin, best ball carrier of the Elis, will replace Stan Fuller at right halfback against the Crimson.

ROSCOE EXPECTED BACK

Fuller played against Princeton last Saturday and his kicking had much to do with Yale's surprising victory. Giving the best back to Rankin will weaken the Blue defensively but add greatly to its offensive power.

Gerry Roscoe, crack quarterback who tossed the pass that spelled defeat to the Tigers, is suffering another light attack of the "flu," which kept him out of the Georgia game, but he is expected to be able to start against Harvard.

Kim Whitehead, veteran fullback and kicking ace when Fuller isn't playing, is suffering slightly from a leg bruise, but he, too should be ready for action Saturday.

The other "iron men" who wrote gridiron history at Princeton are in the best shape and, of course, will get the call against the traditional foe from Cambridge.

60,000 TO SEE GAME

The Elis are working out daily and will continue to do so for the rest of the week. No overconfidence or letdown following the win over the Tigers is evident in camp.

A crowd of 80,000 or more will watch the battle judging from the advance sale of tickets. There is little chance though that the Bowl's 7[illegible],000 capacity will be taxed.

Sellout for Notre Dame, Army Game

By the Associated Press

Davidson, N. C.—Davidson's record is nothing to shout about, having won only three of its eight games but in Johnny Mackorell the Southerners have a real star. Quarterback and captain, he has gained a total of 490 yards from scrimmage in 90 attempts and completed 25 out of 45 passes for a total yardage of 280. He also punts and has averaged 38 yards.

New York—By night-fall it was expected that the standing room only sign would be hung out at the Yankee Stadium, where the Army and Notre Dame tangle Saturday. The advance sale already has passed the 76,000 mark and the final 3,000 ducats were to go on sale to the first come, first served this morning.

New York—With one of the lightest Columbia teams in recent years, Lou Little has figured a possible way of beating Syracuse. "We'll have to fool 'em if we can," he said. "We certainly can't do it on power."

University, Ala.—Joe Demyanovich, Alabama's ace fullback, is following Fred Sington, All-American tackle, in at least one respect. Sington was a member of Phi Beta Kappa and Demyanovich is a candidate for the same honor.

Ithaca—When Cornell meets Pennsylvania for the 41st time on Franklin Field Thanksgiving Day it will be almost like home-coming for eleven of the up-staters, who hail from the Quaker State. Among the regulars there's Captain Walt Switzer from Williamsport, Bill Condon and Hack Wilson, Philadelphia; Frank Murdock, Natrona Heights, and Tom Borland, Oil City.

West Point—Lieutenant Gar Davidson is taking no chances of a leak in the Army's plan of attack against Notre Dame. For the first time in five years the Cadets are working behind locked gates.

Thompson in Harrier Win

Wakefield high is the new interscholastic cross country champion and its captain, George Thompson is the individual title holder.

Thompson led the field to the tape in 14:38 over the new 2¼-mile Stoneham high course.

Wakefield was low with 33 points. Then came Arlington, 45; Quincy, 66; Melrose, 101, and Braintree, 102.

Norfolk 'Eskimos' Open Winter Golf

The Norfolk Golf Club of Dedham will start its third all-winter golf this week-end with a turkey tournament Saturday and Sunday.

Frank Gifford, president of the club, is sure the membership of "Eskimos" will reach the 100 mark before Christmas.

Special tournaments will be held Thanksgiving, Christmas, New Year's Day, Washington's Birthday, March 17 and April 19, when the season closes.

Colgate Sends Scouts to See 1935 Foes

By Joe Cashman

Eternal vigilance is the price of football fame.

How do you suppose a college like Colgate, with not many more students than Harvard, Yale and Princeton have football candidates, turns out elevens that scale the gridiron heights while the teams of the Big Three wallow in the mire by comparison?

Coaching and material is usually the answer heard. That's correct, too but it's only part of the story. Strict attention to even the most minor details plays just as important a part in the success of the Red Raiders.

Lite Andy Kerr is a great coach not alone because he's an exceptionally smart football strategist and is provided the finest tools to work with, but also because he is a firm believer in the theory that if any sport is worth doing, it's worth doing as well as is humanly possible.

Consider, for example, the season's schedule of Les Hart, captain of the mighty Colgate eleven of two years ago and now one of Kerr's scouts.

DON'T OVERLOOK A THING

Your envoy ran into Hart in the press box during the Brown-Holy Cross game at Providence, where the scout sat peering down on the same gridiron where he led Len Macaluso and several other All-Americas to a smashing victory over a previous undefeated Bear on Thanksgiving morning in 1932.

Hart has been in these parts since mid September. He scouted Holy Cross until the Red Raiders invaded Worcester to pin the first defeat of the campaign on the Crusaders. Then he picked up the Bruins' trail.

Now, it was apparent weeks ago that the Colgate crew could play blindfolded, spot Brown three touchdowns and still go on to win New England's annual Turkey Day grid classic by a comfortable margin.

Yet Hart scouts the McLaughrymen as thoroughly as though they loomed as the most dangerous opponent of his Alma Mater.

And now for a most amazing revelation of the care Kerr takes to insure victory for his boys.

"Well, this will be your last scouting job this season," we ventured. "What then?"

"Oh, I'm not through yet," the scout replied. "There's a little trip to Iowa to be taken care of next week-end."

"What's Iowa got to do with Colgate?" we wanted to know. "The last game of the season is with Brown here on Thanksgiving."

SCOUTS IOWA NEXT

"That's so," Hart agreed, "but don't forget there are other seasons to come. Next fall, for instance. And it happens that our initial opponent in 1935 is Iowa, a newcomer to our schedule.

"We don't know anything about the Westerners. So I'm going out to learn what I can of their system of play.

"It would be silly to waste ten months that could be spent in acquainting our players with the type of offense and defense they can expect to face when they start competition next October."

It may be that Iowa will scrap this year's system in 1935. There may even be a new coach in charge out there. But it's just as likely that Hart will acquire enough knowledge next week to enable Colgate to win that game, and Kerr wouldn't think of passing up the chance.

So you see there's nothing lucky about Colgate's gridiron greatness. It's due to thorough attention to every phase of the pastime.

A sweet water college is on the top because it is eternally vigilant.

EUROPEAN TOUR SUGGESTED FOR PRO GRIDDERS

By Damon Runyon

(Copyright 1934, By Universal Service)

New York, Nov. 21—Two American professional football teams may go to Europe to tour England, Ireland and Scotland, playing against British teams.

The plan has been proposed by George Preston Marshall, the best showman in professional football, who owns the Boston Redskins.

Mr. Marshall does not suggest his own team, but any two teams capable of giving the British a demonstration of the American game.

The greatest impetus the pro game has received in New York since "Red" Grange came here in the early stages of his professional career some years ago came Sunday through the Bears-Giants game.

Football fans endeavoring to rehash and replay the Saturday pastime in Broadway resorts after Sunday were discouraged by the chatter about the pros.

It may interest the reader to learn something of the growth of professional football as reflected by the price of franchises in the big league.

A couple of years ago an entire franchise could have been bought in several cities for $7500. A quarter interest in one was sold for that amount last year.

The other day a price was asked on one of the big town franchises in the East, and the answer was $80,000.

Professional hockey has long since become one of the major pastimes of a number of our large cities. Professional football seems on its way to join it. Professional tennis is growing, too.

Strangely enough, the patriarch of the pro games, boxing, continues in a sad decline. In many cities where it is legalized, it is in worse case than in the days when it was strictly an outlaw game.

There is no accounting for this state of affairs. The cowboy world series in Madison Square Garden, another comparatively new pro game, was worth a dozen fights from a financial standpoint.

Hall Reelected U. S. L. T. A. Head

New York, Nov. 21 (AP)—Tennis in this country will be ruled for another year by Walter Merrill Hall of New York, a former "First Ten" luminary.

Redskins Will Make Bid for Stanford Grid Ace

By Bill Grimes

Under a heavy guard of assistant managers and checkers who look with suspicion upon every airplane that passes within view of Soldiers Field, Harvard is preparing for Yale. Arnie Horween, who had the sign on the Elis for three years, has been studying football conditions at Harvard for two days, but he is not the type to volunteer information unless requested. Eddie Casey has something up his sleeve. If it gets across, Yale will be lucky if it breaks its bi-weekly [illegible] [illegible] once the Brown game.

Babe Siebert rifled home the goal that gave the Bruins a victory over St. Louis in the opener at the Garden, and last night little Johnny Gagnon pushed in the lone goal, which big Nels Stewart put in scoring position to give the Patricians a win over Detroit. Incidentally, Stewart has figured prominently in both of the Bruins' home goals.

Ossie Osmundson and Connie King have been on the injured list for weeks. Ossie has an infected foot and did not make the trip, while Connie's sprained ankle cost him his berth with the Wings.

If the pre-post information is authentic, Bobby Grayson, Stanford, will be selected All America fullback. Incidentally, George Marshall, owner of the Redskins, will bid for Grayson's services. Larry Le Van, who was rated as the last word as an all round back, lost some prestige during the Yale game . . . Tommy Anderson, ex-Philadelphia Arrow, has made a fine impression with Jack Adams, manager of the Detroit Red Wings. Tommy is not the flashy type of play maker but he produces, which is what counts.

Mounted Police in Armory Show

Subs of note with Melrose include Joe Pagnucci (a soph who will start), Bill White (brother of Center Joe), ends; Don Deluca, and Bob Hatch, tackles; Al Givino and Joe Grant, guards; Ed Harrow, center; Francis Mayne, Francis Sullivan, Fred Wills and Bob Schofield, backs.

With seven of the [illegible] varsity back, the 1935 machine will find Melrose near the peak once more.

GOLD BLOC FALL AGAIN FEARED BY FINANCE

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

James R. Bancroft

Commentators who insisted toward the close of last week [illegible] danger of a break [illegible] bloc had passed must have been considerably put out by [illegible] European [illegible] today. The Universal Service pictured the situation in Belgium as tense while other agencies presented disturbing news of France and Holland. The currency of the last named remains the one best guide in the opinion of this writer. The guilder has been persistently weak and in the event the gold bloc falls it will not be at all surprising if it goes first. The reason is not that the guilder is necessarily in the weakest position. But there are strong forces in Holland that are convinced [illegible] valuation must come.

Type Portrait: James R. Bancroft, president of the American Institute of Finance, of Boston . . One of the most widely followed economists in New England . . . But his sphere of influence is by no means limited geographically . . . His latest comments on inflation are worthy of the closest attention from businessmen and bankers . . . Since Mr. Bancroft believes 1935 will witness the beginning of a huge period of credit inflation . . . Which, he says, is a paradox . . . Because it comes from confidence that the administration will cease currency experiment . . . And the net result is that the huge reservoir of credits will be tapped by private enterprise.

All of this brings us down to the bank shares, which I now [illegible] are worthy of buyers' attention. For if the government is going to gradually withdraw from financing enterprise then the tremendous resources of banks now lying idle will find em[illegible] [illegible] the event the profits of banks will be likely to amaze many with a sensational comeback. This is a changed view from that last expressed here. It is to be remembered that the possibility of credit and not monetary inflation puts banks to the front rank of prospective earners.

Shorts—While New York banks are getting a great deal of attention at present do not overlook Boston . . . On the whole, the latter present more liberal yields at current levels . . . They may not be so fast moving . Reports the writer is prone to credit [illegible] of some mighty fine buying in certain Boston bank shares . . . Getting back to foreign exchange . . . Holland also has a rubber tangle . . Her rubber being largely native . . . She wants lower prices to discourage growers . . . Devaluation, since rubber is almost entirely exported, would do the trick.

Investors Market Surveys of New York inf[illegible] the writer of their current market views and they are unexpectedly bullish. Present technical indications the[illegible] a long and sustained irregular bull swing which should reach substantially higher [illegible] were recorded in February [illegible] bull swing, it pointed out to us could easily reach the 130-135 zone on the 30 industrial index. Buying during the next weak spell is suggested on the theory it may mark the last halt before prices set out on the long climb uphill.

Street Chatter: A merger between two leading food chains is talked of in certain quarters [illegible] It will [illegible] the front pages in two Eastern cities, we believe . . . On the first show of strength a certain large advisory service is going to alter investment advice materially . . . We are given to understand that tobaccos, high-priced store stocks and amusements will be sold [illegible] proceeds put into selected low-priced store stocks and amusements will be sold and the proceeds put into selected low-priced issues . . . With a good deal of emphasis on the steels . . . And certain of the rails.

Wall Streeters Wait For Buying Opportunities

BY WALL STREET SPECTATOR

[illegible] dive. Many were disappointed, too for they have been looking for new [illegible] opportunities.

[illegible] Motors were [illegible] traders [illegible] their [illegible] of opinion that one is in the making.

The response is understood to have been enthusiastic, and is beginning to percolate around downtown . . . buying in General Motors is attributed to the "old crowd." Anyway, it's someone with a lot of money.

There is talk of a dividend before long on Electric Auto Lite . . . Lummus Co., a Babcock & Wilcox subsidiary, got a contract in the rebuilding of the Standard of New Jersey Argentine refinery, destroyed by fire recently . . .

Pressure on the rails is said to be a combination of tax loss selling and liquidation of some stale bank loans.

These amount to nearly $70,000,000 . . . a refunding would probably be the same as the financing early in the year, a convertible bond issue . . . The conversion price couldn't be less than the $40 a share in this year's issue, which would mean that there would have to be quite a market in Central to put the bonds over . . .

It shouldn't be difficult next spring if things pick up the way many expect.

Daily Stock Analysis

COMPANY — American Woolen.

Largest domestic factor in production of woolen yard goods. Produces about 15 per cent of total. About 75 per cent of its output is [illegible] jobber and wholesale trade, but some yard goods sales to department stores are made.

CAPITALIZATION — Funded debt is $1,125,000. Preferred stock paying 7 per cent and having a $100 value is outstanding in the amount of 399,815 shares and there are 400,000 no par common shares. Financial position is satisfactory, although bank loans have increased due to policy of building up inventories.

EARNINGS—For initial six months of 1934 a sizable loss of $1.96 per share was shown. Sec[illegible] results at best are hardly expected to be better. 1935 outlook is a bit more cheerful due to reduction in fixed charges, manufacturing economies and stabilization of prices. In fact any betterment in prices would find the company a substantial gainer.

DIVIDENDS—Thus far in 1934 two payments of $1.25 each have been made on the preferred. Back [illegible] amount to $45.[illegible]

As far as the common shareholders [illegible] dividend are concerned they must necessarily pivot around expressed hope for some form of a capital reorganization eliminating [illegible] the preferred.

COMMENT—The tremendous inventory of American Woolen gives the common and preferred shares a speculative flavor that is hard to resist. Any upturn in finished goods prices such as was witnessed [illegible] would return enormous profits to the company and have [illegible] shares, in the opinion of some observers.

Rail Bonds Sag in Quiet Trading

By Associated Press

New York, Nov. 21—U. S. Governments were in fairly good form today, but corporate bonds continued to meet enough selling to push the average values a little lower. As in recent sessions rail and utility loans were most widely affected by the poor support.

Quoted fractionally under yesterday's closing levels Southern Railway 4s sold at 55, North American 5s at 80, American & Foreign Power 5s at 53⅛, Santa Fe 4s at 104, St. Paul 5s at 21⅛, Erie 5s at 66⅛, International Telephone 5s at 57½ and United Drug 5s at 85.

Chesapeake & Ohio 4½s moved up a little to 111⅛. Some of the Missouri Pacific obligations displayed strength coincident with the meeting of the road's executives and bankers to discuss reorganization proposals. Western Union 5s, recently under pressure, came back about a point to 83¾.

Paramount Publix 5½s of 1950 and certificates rose to 60⅛ for a new gain of four points, which more than made up the ground yielded yesterday.

Although a bit spotty the treasury list showed some improvement on balance. The 4¼s rose 6-32ds of a point to 101.28 and smaller gains featured the 3⅛s of 1944-46 and the 3⅜s of 1943-47. Home Loans 3s were up 4-32ds at 98.28, and the 4s had a like gain at 100.8.

POLITICIANS TRY TO WORK MIRACLES

By B. C. FORBES

What do we ask of politicians?

We ask them to administer government efficiently and economically. Particularly have we asked them [illegible] hard times to keep down expenditures, to keep down taxes.

Have they done it?

B. C. Forbes

Our federal government has sent the national debt to heights [illegible] the end of the World War [illegible] debt [illegible] during [illegible] have been [illegible] piled on your back and mine. Not only so, but promises and prospects of balancing the federal budget during the fiscal year starting next June are [illegible] so heavy, so [illegible] governmental expenditures.

[illegible] New York down, the politicians are busier than bees, ferreting out new ways and means [illegible] fresh taxes from taxpayers.

In short whereas almost all business organizations, almost all families, almost all individuals have had to retrench drastically, the politicians have gone ahead spending freely in almost every one of the nation's 182,839 political units.

But does this record deter politicians from claiming that, given a chance, they can run businesses far more capably and economically than they are run by men trained in business from their youth up?

It does not!

Federal government officeholders, as well as various municipal officeholders, are shouting from the housetops that they should be supplied with money by you and me to go deeper into business, to oust existing businesses managed by experienced men—and, incidentally, to wreak financial ruin upon millions of families and individuals who have invested their savings in such businesses.

Is it common sense to expect politicians to achieve more brilliant results in the realm of business than they have achieved and are achieving in the realm of politics, of government?

Are not complaints rife all over the land that taxes are unreasonably high, that politicians have spent and are spending too freely?

If they have failed to satisfy the public in their rightful duties, the duties for which they were chosen, why should we swallow glittering promises that they will work miracles if given a whack at duties they know nothing about?

Happily, the acute alarm that was incited by NRA, by brain trusters and by other bureaucrats over the prospect that government would enter and dominate many lines of business and industry, has lately subsided. "Cracking-down" Johnson is out. The brain trusters have been shelved. Bureaucrats have had their wings clipped.

Instead of industry and business being threatened and flouted, President Roosevelt began three months ago to inaugurate a policy of conciliation and cooperation.

Sentiment in the highest places was becoming distinctly more hopeful.

But something of a chill has just been caused by President Roosevelt's remark that the federal invasion of private enterprise in the Tennessee valley is intended to be duplicated all over the continent.

TVA—which stands for the Tennessee Valley Authority—promises slashing cuts in electric power and light rates. Of course, it should be able to produce current at low cost because of the tremendous financial favors extended to it by the federal government.

It got its original property for a song; it is financed by the government at lower cost than is available to business borrowers; it defies efforts to bring it under the regulation of state bodies; it exempts itself from all but nominal taxation; its railway freight is hauled at cut rates.

President Wendell L. Willkie, of the Commonwealth & Southern Corporation, a far-flung utility operating over a very wide area in the same section of the country, comes forward with this definite, unequivocal, clear-cut offer:

"Given the same subsidies, we can immediately put into effect rates below the TVA rates."

What will be the political reply to this responsible offer, this challenge by a highly responsible private corporation?

Beech-Nut Packing Pays 50c "Extra"

Beech-Nut Packing Co. declared an extra dividend of 50 cents on the common in addition to regular quarterly dividend of 75 cents.

Extra dividend is payable December 15 to stock of record December 1 and the regular dividend January 2 to stock of record December 12.

SHARES FIRM NEAR CLOSE OF MARKET

Shares stiffened near the close of the market. Prices worked fractionally higher. Closing tone was firm.

GAINS NOTED

Utility shares, as a group, displayed a distinctly better tone and scored gains running to a point, under the leadership of Public Service of N. J.

Declaration of the regular quarterly dividend by American Telephone was ignored by the stock, which held in a narrow range, only fractionally above yesterday's close.

Railroad shares were the market's principal sore spot as selling during the forenoon session produced losses in Atchison, New York Central, Lackawanna and Southern railway running to a point or more.

United States Steel and other industrial shares again gave a good account of themselves holding well in the face of the heaviness in other sections.

Mining shares were slightly easier, while building stocks continued to meet with demand. Farm implements held well after early hesitancy with Deere preferred a particular strong spot.

ACTION OF RAILS

Selling of the rails looked rather professional, and following considerable comment on the part of chart readers over the inability of rails to follow the recent advance in industrials. A factor in the selling, no doubt, was recent adverse action of second grade rail bonds.

The railroads have now passed the seasonal peak of traffic, and recent earnings statements have been unsatisfactory for many. It was not able, however, that the market as a whole withstood the adverse action of the carrier shares, just as it refused to decline much when utilities were heavily sold last week.

Traders were evidently encouraged by further indications of business improvement, as seen in the steel and retail trade reports, but showed most interest in shares of companies likely to benefit from government spending and extensions of credit, such as construction and building supply issues, and merchandising shares.

Ordering of the regular quarterly dividend of $2.25 by American Telephone had been expected in usually well-informed quarters. Last week's selling of the issue followed announcement of the Federal Communications Commission that it was launching its inquiry into the company, although it was pointed out that need not have occasioned surprise, inasmuch as the commission was merely carrying out the mandate of the last session of Congress.

American Brass Co. Reduces Prices

American Brass Company, subsidiary of Anaconda Copper Mining Company, reduced prices ¼ cent per pound on the following products, containing less than 80 per cent of copper: Sheets, rods, wire, angles, channels, extruded shapes and scrap. On same products containing over 80 per cent of copper prices were reduced ⅛ cent per pound.

Reductions of ⅛ to ¼ cent per pound in these rolled and drawn brass products were accounted for by the lower levels for zinc now prevailing.

Moderate Trading in Boston Wool

Moderate quantities of a few grades of fleece wools are moving, but these lines are not as active as the finer quality Western grown lines. Fine Ohio Delaine wools are bringing 27-28c in the grease for good to choice offerings shrinking 60 per cent or less.

Heavier shrinking strictly combing 64s and finer fleeces are bringing 26-27c in the grease. Strictly combing 56s, ⅜ Blood, Ohio and similar fleeces bring 29-30c in the grease.

WEEKLY 'ONE MAN'S FAMILY' PROGRAM SHIFTS ON AIR

An attraction that has come to rate among the first half dozen of radio presentations in the whole broadcasting realm, is the "One Man's Family" feature. This despite the fact that it has been subjected to the so well known tossing around and decidedly too much. Listeners galore don't like a favorite offering moved from pillar to pillar as in the case of this one. However, there looms hope that the shifting is at an end. Tonight, loudspeaker patrons hear "One Man's Family" coming through from California (WEEI) between 10:30 and 11 o'clock.

Starting as a trial turn, the "One Man's Family" saga of everyday American life as lived in the average home circle, has won wide acclaim from coast to coast. Until last week, it was wafted from 6 until 6:30 on Saturday's. Henceforth, the half hour is slated for airing out of San Francisco each Wednesday evening, reaching this neck of the broad land when our Eastern clocks indicate it's 10:30 p. m.

MARY AND MANHATTAN

That romantic "Little Old New York" show is selected by Mary Pickford for her program vehicle tonight (WEEI) come 8 o'clock. One of the most striking of the silent film settings, the story by Rida Johnson Young, was a starring production designed for Marion Davies and scored sharply throughout the United States.

Fred Allen figures to fathom selling problems for big business this evening (WEEI) during his 9 to 10 o'clock "Town Hall Tonight" turn. Fred assumes an advertising agency air. Accordingly, he writes copy, makes extensive merchandising plans for products and even licks stamps in order for the "office mail" to be on its way on time. James Melton solos as usual, while Lennie Hayton and his troubadours do musical duty to round out the Allen antics.

THOMAS THEMES

Two vocal compositions near and dear to countless hearts, have been included by John Charles Thomas, for baritone rendition this evening (WBZ) at 9:30. They are the plaintive spiritual "Steal Away" and the touching "Mother O'Mine" melody.

Alex Gray and De Wolf Hopper have the "Broadway Varieties" program spotlight (WNAC) tonight with Everett Marshall and the Victor Arden orchestra scheduled as an 8:30 airing.

9:45 A. M. — WNAC — —A 15-minute musical program called Waltz Time.

11:00 A. M.—WAAB—The Barbara Holmes Free Rental Bureau, under the auspices of the Boston Evening American.

This Ear—That Air

By N. F. T.

Down in New York, a deserving Boston girl is getting quite a break tonight. Willie Morris, the lass with the lad's name, who has been winning a worthy way for herself as a result of her singing through WEEI channels here, appears as a guest artist when Lanny Ross and his recently organized "Log Cabin" orchestra move into a network of many affiliated NBC stations, East and West.

All of which brings us to the point of observing how the proverbial local pride and enthusiasm for Hub sons and daughters who distinguish themselves, does not seem to be rewarded or very highly regarded on the occasion of the first noteworthy achievement. Many talented Bostonians in numerous lines of endeavor, particularly in the realm of entertainment, must more often than not, venture from the old home town to register nation wide triumphs.

"N. F. T."

BOSTON A BACK SEAT?

Even then, the historic old Bay State balliwick must wait, that is usually, until considerable fame attends the prodigal, before a glimpse of said son or daughter is to be had. Well and good perhaps, from a theater standpoint. However, the modern magic of radio might well and easily remedy such an antiquated situation.

Willie Morris has been a favorite hereabouts for a long time. Her striking soprano voice has graced many WEEI settings. Still there seems to be no place reserved on the dials in these thickets tonight. Meaning because the makers of the product sponsoring Lanny Ross and Miss Morris have not purchased any time on a Boston station. Thus and so we are given a crystal clear picture of the almost strictly commercial angle by which broadcasting is governed. Too bad is right! Let us not make the mistake of regarding it too seriously then as an art. Unless, of course, it becomes at least a little less of a business. On that score, methinks the sooner the better.

FLEETING FLASHES

There's a 16-year-old Brooklyn lad in town with the new "Calling All Stars" production. His name is Al Bernie. He was seen here last with Rudy Vallee. He is, in fact, said to be a protege of the visionary Mr. Vallee. Young Al lays claim to prominence on the basis of being able to impersonate over 100 stage and screen celebrities, not only by means of the voice, but from a facial expression standpoint as well. His remarkable "Little Caesar" characterization of Edward G. Robinson is enough to raise the eyebrows of any impressario . . . George Burns and Gracie Allen are fitting football into their funny business tonight. George wears a headguard while Gracie gives a play-by-play announcing impression. They inject "California We're Not Coming Yet" for theme music . . . Jack Benny comes to town next Monday and guess what? Your Uncle N. F. T. here is slated to interview the droll wit behind a WBZ-WBZA microphone.

Ill Man Walks to Hospital in Scanty Garb, He Says

Unfortunate is the case of the young man who has to walk to City Hospital from his home in South Boston for treatment each day because he has not the money for carfare. Added to that, he needs warm clothing. He would appreciate an overcoat, size 36. His mother pleads for a coat, size 42.

Wanted, a single bed and mattress. The writer of this request says that her daughter has to sleep on a divan in an unheated parlor for lack of a bed.

A Boston woman asks for an overcoat for her 12-year-old son.

An appeal also has been received from a needy youngster for an overcoat, size 14, and shoes, (boy's), size 3½.

Please designate sizes when asking for or giving clothing. Do not send articles to the office of the Boston Evening American.

Bandits in Lowell Store Raids Sought

Lowell, Nov. 21—Two armed bandits who staged a series of raids on stores here were sought today after they had escaped with nearly $100.

Their first victim was Armand H. Lussier, manager of a store on Branch street. They relieved him of $50. Later the men entered a Central street store and cleaned the cash register of the day's receipts.

Belmont Sends Cupid S O S as Weddings Slump

The records of Town Clerk Arthur E. Hough disclosed a shocking state of affairs. Only four couples have applied for marriage licenses for the month of November.

Normally the number is 20 or so. In romantic years it runs a good deal higher.

Girls in the town clerk's office were inclined to blame the backwardness of Belmont swains, but male attaches said it was the fault of the girls.

W. U. President Sees Trade Gains

Paris, Nov. 21 (INS)—The downward trend in America definitely has been arrested and business is progressing, not substantially but with encouraging prospects. Roy Barton White, president of the Western Union Telegraph Company, told International News Service today.

Your Own Neighbors Can Tell You
What a Good Medicine This Is
Right in your own neighborhood there must be a woman who has been benefited by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Let her tell you how good it is before and after childbirth, at the Change, or whenever you are nervous and rundown.
"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped me wonderfully. I recommend it for pregnancy." — Mrs. Gilbert P. Mynatt, Brookvale, Colorado.
"I had Change of Life and all that goes with it. Thanks to your Vegetable Compound I am pulling through fine. My daughter takes it, too." — Mrs. George Mentges, Route #2, Box 169, Sidney, Ohio.
A medicine which has the written endorsement of more than 700,000 women must be good. Let it help you, too.
"I Am Like My Old Self"
"I work in the rubber shops. I got all rundown and tired out with no appetite. People told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. One bottle eliminated that awful tired feeling. My husband says I am like my old self." — Mrs. Barbara Spears, 54 Frances Avenue, Akron, Ohio.
"I was so weak and tired and nervous and irritable that life became almost unbearable. I had to give up my position. My friends and neighbors told me that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was the best thing I could take. I felt better after three bottles so I kept on. Now I am always cheerful and full of pep." — Anna Clark, 910 South Potomac St., Baltimore, Maryland.

Stop the Criminals!

Help Department of Justice

DURING the last two years the Department of Justice at Washington has distinguished itself as the most effective law-enforcement agency in the history of the country.

Within that period it has solved an astonishing number of crimes with which State and local authorities were unable or unwilling to cope.

It has wiped out such murderous banditti as the Dillinger and the "Machine Gun" Kelly gangs.

By cleaning up 27 alarming cases and convicting 74 notorious participants, it has broken the wave of kidnaping that threatened to engulf the nation.

In the last fiscal year alone it has obtained 3531 criminal convictions, located 900 Federal fugitives from justice, and identified 4356 fugitives for local police departments.

And it has accomplished these amazing results with a detective force—the now world-famous Division of Investigation—composed of only 545 operatives, of whom 112 are accountants.

This small body of alert, capable and courageous men has the responsibility of Federal criminal investigation over an area of 3,619,596 square miles, with a population of 130,000,000.

WITH more than justifiable pride, Attorney-General Cummings has reviewed the foregoing facts in submitting to the Federal Bureau of the Budget a request that 200 trained operatives be added to the existing force.

Law enforcement by the States and localities has long proved itself to be a shocking failure.

Instead of REPRESSING crime, it has ALLOWED CRIME TO SPREAD until today the country has more than 700,000 KNOWN CRIMINALS, and an annual crime bill exceeding TWELVE THOUSAND MILLION DOLLARS.

The Department of Justice should be supplied generously, not niggardly, with ALL THE MEN AND ALL THE MONEY IT NEEDS.

Efficient justice is cheap at any price.

The Seventy-fourth Congress cannot perform a more patriotic or laudable service than by extending the power and activity of the Department until it becomes like similar departments in other countries—A GREAT DOMINATING AGENCY IN THE DETECTION AND PUNISHMENT OF CRIME.

To Ease Tax Burden

New England Opportunities

There are stray signs that taxpayers the nation over have been stung by the unjust impositions of politicians. Wise members of various governing bodies will take note and guide their spendings into more conservative channels.

But more important than judicious spendings are the opportunities offered for economy in government and in taxation. The public is tiring of tax excuses offered under the guise of redistribution of wealth. It is coming to the conclusion this is but another way of apologizing for the destruction of wealth.

Here in New England there are two great opportunities for economy of taxation. The first is elimination of county government. The second is the determination of the New England Congressional delegation to form a bloc in support of the General Manufacturers' Sales Tax.

These things MUST be done. Else all business will be strangled. And all hope of meeting just expenditure for relief will have to be abandoned.

The people demand just and honest taxation in order that they may tend to the welfare of their unfortunates without stint or selfishness.

Prosperity Barometer

Shows Important Gains

John Hancock, famous old Boston financier, once remarked that in times of depression Wall Street throws all good news into the waste basket. Signs are not lacking that what was true in his day is true now.

Statistical evidence alone is not 100 per cent trustworthy. Thus the industrial production statistics of the Federal Reserve Board are questioned by the Cleveland Trust Company.

The Ohio bank points out that a truer picture of recovery is obtained by supplementing basic production figures with employment, real wage and carloading figures.

Such an improved prosperity barometer shows that some real gains have been made in the past two and one-half years. Even more important it shows a considerable portion of them have been retained.

So let's be sure to avoid the pitfalls of news. Remember the good items as well as the poor. As the Cleveland Trust Company demonstrates, the resulting merger of both types of news may give an unexpectedly cheerful answer.

Another Land Idea

10 Acres for the Dispossessed

Many a heart will thrill with sympathy upon reading the suggestion of the kindly pastor who would aid Dan Cupid. He says:

> "The Government is supporting many things, so why wouldn't it be well to help our young men and women who want to establish a home?
> "Tell them to get married, give them 10 acres of land and money to build a house and let them have their home and children while they want them."

If it were practical, we could wish this program might be followed everywhere.

And if it were practical, we could also wish to see something done about restoring their homes to the thousands who have been dispossessed in recent years by ruin and high taxes.

'They'd Kick Off the Covers'

Mrs. Roosevelt Knows

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt wondered, when she examined the twin beds in the "boys' room" at the model American house, in Park avenue, New York, whether small boys "wouldn't be apt to kick the covers off the beds without footboards."

And with that remark the First Lady of the Land showed why she has so much personal influence over women of the country. Underneath her role as an active participant in politics and business she has always been and remains a competent American home-maker who sticks close to the simple, practical things.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Why Are We Afraid to Die?

I wonder why
We're so afraid
To die.
Why, facing death,
Do we all
Sob and rave?
Yet every day,
We hide
Within some grave!
And, every day,
Avoiding loss or strife,
We close our brains
And seal our hearts
To Life!

Elsie Robinson

The dead are buried
Deep within the clay;
But are the dead
More shut away
Than they
Who spend their lives
In dreams of Yesterday—
Or seek escape
From present risk
And sorrow
By building
Spanish castles
In Tomorrow?

The sleeping dead
Can no more hear
Or see;
But are the dead
More deaf or blind
Than we
Who have
Sound ears and eyes,
Yet daily
Dodge and flee
All sights or sounds
Which menace
Our complacency?
The dead are strange—
Their flesh
Is cold and pale—
Their blood
No longer leaps
To life's fierce hail
Nor yearns to follow
Down her reckless trail
And yet—
I wonder—
Are the dead
More strange
Than those who live,
Yet are afraid
To change?
Those coward spirits
Who'll not even give
A hearing
To life's challenge
But who step aside
From all adventure
Lest the world deride!
Worms gnaw the dead
They say—
But is there
Worse decay
Than that which comes
Before we pass away?
Or fouler horror
Than the things we breed
Through our own fright?
Fat, secret worms
Of laziness and greed,
Conceit, intolerance
And spite,
Which feed
On living brains
And leave them
Dead, indeed,
To all life's wonder
And delight?

TO DIE,
AND YET
SEEK A GRAVE
IN LIFE?

The Marry-Go-Round

By Helen Rowland

THESE MODERN LOVERS

A woman feels that she is "misunderstood" when she has been taken too lightly in a love-affair; a man feels that he has been "misunderstood" when he has been taken too seriously.

Helen Rowland

No wife need drop a love potion into her husband's coffee in order to keep him safe from other women. A little chopped onion in his salad always makes an ideal chaperon.

It's getting so that almost any good, up-to-date car can go a great deal longer on a gallon than its driver can, to judge from the smash-ups.

You can't expect a man to be logical or a woman to be reasonable until their love is dead—and then, what's the use?

A man can keep a girl waiting, doubting and hoping so long for a definite offer of marriage that she is so exhausted she'll say "yes" to anything, just to end the suspense.

The modern gal is winning flying records, golf championships, business laurels and political honors—but she appears to be losing her ancient knack for winning the kind of love that outlasts the honeymoon.

It never pays a girl to be too bright and snappy in her "comebacks." The average man has such a large collection of little weaknesses that no matter how careless the aim of a woman's sarcasm, she can always manage to hit him in one of them.

Courtship is that interval of glamorous uncertainty, in which the girl helps the man to make up his mind to give her the legal right to love him.

The love that begins solely in sex-attraction always ends in ANOTHER sex-attraction—because love is neither all biological nor all spiritual, but a divine blend of the two.

Hell holds no further punishment for the woman who has watched the eyes of an ardent lover turn, day by day, into the eyes of a bored censor.

Stars and Stripes

Rudy, a sea gull, is spending the winter in Norway, Me., where he is welcomed by all. This Maine Rudy, instead of crooning, mews.

Expert figures that the Thanksgiving dinner this year will cost 10 per cent more than last year's—and be worth it.

Representative Roland D. Sawyer of Ware offers a bill to prevent an outgoing governor from filling state offices except temporarily. A bill to prevent filling UNNECESSARY state, county and city offices would be more to the taxpayer's liking.

"Grand Lady" Gone -:- -:- By Winifred Black

"Yes," said my friend, whom I like to call Ilderim, the generous—although she is a woman, which Ilderim certainly was not—but she's generous enough to deserve the name.

Winifred Black

Ilderim, the generous, leaned back in the garden chair and tossed her broad hat to a nearby table.

"Yes," she said, "the grand lady has gone—gone for good, and I don't know whether to laugh or to cry. I'm so relieved.

"Not a bad person, the grand lady, really rather a kind heart, and quite unusually intelligent in a bookish, high brow sort of way. But dear me, she thinks so many unimportant things are important and to her mind all the things that are important to me don't count at all.

"There are the rugs, for instance.

"I don't like expensive rugs in a country house, and anyway I couldn't afford them if I wanted them, anyway not just now.

SHE DIDN'T APPROVE

"I'd rather spend the money having friends for the week-end and taking people who never get much of a chance to get away on nice little trips, don't you know—that sort of thing.

"And rugs don't mean such a lot to me, any how.

"Well, the grand lady just simply couldn't get over the rugs that we had, and the ones we ought to have and didn't.

"And then there was the car. I skim around in a little affair, you know, and this was a great embarrassment to the grand lady.

"She was just so embarrassed when I took her around in the small car, I felt quite queer about it.

"Sometimes I thought I'd have to get a new car—but the other day I drove to the ambassador's country home.

"I forgot all about the little car until I was just getting out, and then a wave of horror swept over me.

"'Heavens, I thought, the car!'

"I was deciding to jump right in and drive straight home again before someone saw me, when the ambassador himself came around the corner of the house into the driveway.

GLAD SHE'S GONE

"'Ah,' said the ambassador, 'I envy you your car, they have the best engines in the world—I am planning to get one myself, when I can afford another car.'

"'Diplomat,' murmured the grand lady, and I knew just what she meant. And I think she was wrong.

"The ambassador has been brought up in big, expensive cars and the little car is something new—for him—that's why he likes it.

"I had kind of a hard time with the grand lady. She almost made me feel as if I wished my house, my furniture and my car were different and sometimes, when she chatted so brilliantly about me, I almost thought I wished my husband were different.

"Yes, I'm glad she's gone.

"I hope the people she is visiting now have the right rugs and the right motor car and the right kind of friends."

I think I'd rather be Ilderim, the generous, than to be the grand lady—I think she has a better time living—don't you?

TIME

Whose blundering children, day by day,
He looks upon with patient eyes,
Knowing how much they long to play.

He sees them groping through despair.
He hears them grumbling at their sums,
And smiles and lets them struggle there
Until at last the answer comes.

Tomorrow's page he will not turn.
No eye into the future sees
The lessons only Age can learn.

Never at single bounds we gain
The heights the souls of men must reach,
But little by little we attain
The wisdom Time alone can teach.

By the Rev. Dr. Frank S. Townsend, Methodist Church, Greenwich, R. I.

Hendrik Van Loon

TELLS HOW

History Is Repeated

Yesterday I tried to prove to you that no government has ever yet disappeared from the stage of history until it had played its little role and was ready to depart. Perhaps by comparing governments to ordinary everyday human beings, who also have their days of growth and development followed by their years of slow decline and ultimate death, I made the whole thing look a little too simple.

Hendrik Van Loon

In this world of ours it is very rare for a son to bump off his father. Whenever that happens, the newspapers get quite excited about it and the courts deal sternly with such a miscreant. Whereas in the political world a change of government is rarely accomplished without considerable bloodshed.

But most of the blood is shed long after the old regime has been replaced by the new one, and when the new masters, in a state of panic and insecurity, doubting their own success, begin to see spooks and, in their unreasoning terror, behave as intelligently as a dozen runaway horses.

HISTORY REPEATS

And the rest of the violence is caused by the inevitable conflict that takes place when there are a number of political groups, each one of them laying exclusive claim to the governmental vacancy.

That again is the history of almost every revolution of the last five thousand years. The most dreadful cruelties in Roman history took place long after Rome had ceased to be a republic and when Marius and Sulla were fighting for mastery of the home city in the name of capitalism and proletarianism.

The worst part of the French Revolution was that which occurred after the downfall of the monarchy, when the different political parties, the left and the right and the ultra-left, tried to decide who were to be the ultimate rulers of France.

Our information upon the subject is scant, but judging by what the newspapers have told us, the most unsavory butcheries of the recent German revolution occurred when the different groups of Nazis began to quarrel among themselves as to who should be in supreme command.

COST IN LIVES

And the number of Tsarist followers executed by the Bolsheviks is quite insignificant when we compare it to the hundreds of thousands of victims who have lost their lives because they believed in a different agricultural policy from that expounded by their Lordships of the Kremlin.

And if we shall ever be able to obtain a few reliable figures upon the number of loyalists who were forced to leave America after the Mother Country had resigned itself to loss of the colonies (no government in the world could have kept them) we shall probably discover that they were much more numerous than the actual casualties of that long conflict.

Mr. Dooley used to say that "the la grippe was a disease which began when it was over." The same holds true of revolutions. It is easy enough to live through a revolution. But it is exceedingly difficult to survive the aftermath of a revolutionary outbreak. For that is when the real violence begins.

Human Side of the News

Slave Trade Big Business

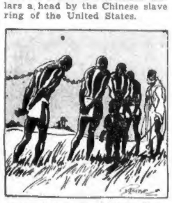
By Edwin C. Hill

GLOBE TROTTER OF THE HEARST METROTONE NEWS

Federal agents, creeping through the night, approach an abandoned house in a lonely region of Northern New Jersey.

At a signal, they dash forward, smash down a door, overpower a Negro guard and descend to a cellar, foul and dank. And there, in chains, are eighteen wretched, frightened half-starved Chinese.

They are part of a "consignment" of thirty-three, smuggled in from China at a thousand dollars a head by the Chinese slave ring of the United States.



The ring loses eighteen thousand dollars at a stroke, but cares little. The eighteen thousand dollars will be charged up to profit and loss, and the profit far exceeds the loss.

ALWAYS ON CHASE

How many Chinese coolies are smuggled over the borders of the United States every year by this shrewd, wealthy, powerful slave ring not even the Federal agents know, but the agents are incessantly on the alert, incessantly on the chase.

Now and again they make a haul and deliver a blow to the slave ring, but it is a good deal like fighting a shadow.

The method of the slave ring is to ascertain in China what human cattle are willing to take a desperate chance, no better than even, that they will live or die, to get free of the miseries and hopelessness of China and get a chance to enter America.

The volunteers once secured and herded at a convenient place, the ring, through semi-respectable agents, hires a steamship, puts up the necessary cash, at one thousand dollars a head (paid in advance always) and leaves it to the steamship captain to make delivery as best he can.

WHEN PLOT SUCCEEDS

When the plot succeeds, as in many instances it does, the smuggled Chinese become, literally, the slaves of the ring, for a period of years, from five to ten, until they can pay themselves out of bondage with heavy interest.

In Arabia parents sell their eight-year-old daughter into twenty-five years of forced labor for $125. These are not isolated cases. They are the common everyday occurrences brought to the attention of the League of Nations and the Vatican.

'INDENTURED LABOR'

A vicious form of the traffic is the kidnaping of natives in Eastern Africa and their transportation across the Red Sea for sale to Arab masters. A French explorer, Joseph Kessel, related how, while traveling recently in the interior of Abyssinia, he witnessed the seizure of a small girl by the slave dealers.

She was tending a herd of goats in the mountains when they stole up on her, enveloped her in a sack, and started to carry her off. The Frenchman interceded and after some bargaining was able to buy her freedom for $150, although the slavers had told him they could get $200 for her from an Arab dealer.

"Indentured labor" is the thinly disguised name under which slavery flourishes by the most part today. Abyssinia has two million such bondsmen, and Tafari, its king who claims direct descendance from Solomon, has promised to wipe out the system in 20 years.

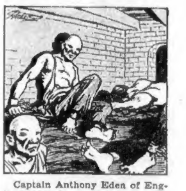
Ironical, to say the least, is the status of Liberia, the Negro republic on the west coast of Africa, in regard to slavery. Here twelve thousand enfranchised Negroes of American origin rule a million natives.

Liberia was conceived as a haven for freed slaves back in 1820 and through the efforts of leading American whites, including Henry Clay, thousands were sent over from the United States, who setting up their state, named the capital Monrovia after President James Monroe.

Today their descendants, the ruling class, stand indicted by the League of Nations for the treatment of the natives, and Liberia has been threatened with expulsion from that body.

Three years ago a commission from Geneva investigated Liberia and presented a report which revealed bloody raids on villages, the seizure of men, women and children, torturing, burning, beating and every imaginable outrage.

Rather, one of the blackest marks of treachery in recent history is the slaughter of the Kroo tribesmen by the Liberian soldiery after the Kroos had been prevailed upon by the League of Nations to surrender their arms.



Captain Anthony Eden of England bitterly arraigned the Liberian government and laid the whole mess at the door of the United States, since this country was responsible for the founding of the Liberian republic.

Secretary of State Hull is working now on the problem and he has a suggestion from a correspondent of the London Times who recently traveled to the country.

This proposal is to set apart the descendants of the American freedman, pay them each $500 and then have some country take a mandate over the remainder of the population.
